Johnson Makes Political Visit

Teasing Non-Candidate

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson, as he makes duty calls around the nation following his dramatic withdrawal from the 1968 election, is proving to be a most tantalizing noncandidate.

Johnson made his first post-announcement political appearance at a Chicago gathering Wednesday night and, for a self-declared "lame duck" managed to sneak suspense into his speech.

The thrust of the chief executive's remarks at a Democratic-sponsored fund-raising dinner was yet another appeal for national unity and a declaration that in the November balloting, perhaps more than ever in the past, "we shall be choosing our future—and the future of our children."

'Despise War'
Then, in an addition to his prepared text, he said:

"There are mothers and fathers in every land—and I am one of those fathers and she (Mrs. Johnson, who accompanied him) is one of those mothers—who despise war as their children despise it."

"I will devote all my days, all my powers and all my energies to winning the peace that is the prayer of every single American family."

teasing additions to his prepared text.

Right at the start, he remarked that his reception had led him to suspect for a fleeting moment that he had leaped ahead in time to another meeting in Chicago—to the Democratic National Convention that will be held there in August.

"But then," he continued, "I remembered who I was—the President, and not the vice president."

As he paused, there was a new burst of cheering from partisans who appeared to think Johnson had chosen that moment to endorse a personal choice for the Democratic presidential nomination.

But this was not to be. Johnson added he was "President and not the vice president—or a member of the Senate."

Cheers dissolved into laughter.

Again, as he closed his remarks, Johnson volunteered that he had been prompted to make "a complete reassessment of my personal situation."

His listeners straightened in their hard-backed chairs and newsmen reached for notebooks. But they relaxed when, instead of any dramatic announcement, he merely added that he meant he still felt compelled to honor Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley's longstanding invitation to speak at the city's annual Democratic banquet.

And an oversized presidential seal in full color hung from the theater-type curtain behind the podium from which Johnson spoke.

Johnson, in many of his public utterances since his March 31 announcement that he would not seek nor accept renomination has made real sport of a situation in which—just possibly—he might change his mind.

Doors Closed
The President's closest friends insist, as he does, that he has closed the door on any movement to draft him as the Democratic nominee.

But Johnson's Chicago appearance, much like his visit to Honolulu last week, had enough earmarks of campaign-year politics to suggest the 59-year-old veteran of the political wars is not quite ready to go to pasture yet.

Like, maybe, he'd relish building up enough pre-convention good will to have a major voice in announcing a potential successor.

U.S., Hanoi Envoys Meet In Vientiane

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — North Vietnam replied today to the latest U.S. proposals on the site for preliminary peace talks but the nature of the reply was not disclosed.

U.S. Ambassador William H. Sullivan was called to the North Vietnamese Embassy here to receive a formal note from the Hanoi Government.

There were widespread rumors that both sides are approaching a compromise on Paris as the site for talks.

Sullivan spent 30 minutes with North Vietnamese Charge d'Affaires Nguyen Chan in Chan's gray stone villa residence on the outskirts of the Laotian capital.

Longest Meeting
It was their longest meeting in a series of contacts following President Johnson's March 31 speech. Sullivan refused all comment on the message from Hanoi.

Sullivan was accompanied by embassy counselor Robert A. Hurwitch who has personally conducted most of the contacts with the North Vietnamese. They began last month with an exchange of a small group of war prisoners held by both sides.

Sullivan and Chan, both with more than three years service in Vientiane, have met and talked frequently at social occasions.

However, they never visited each other's embassy until Sullivan delivered the American proposal on the talk sites April 10 and advised Chan the United States considered Hanoi's proposal of Phnom Penh, Cambodia, as unacceptable.

Boy Admits Arson Making 600 Homeless

NEWARK (AP) — A 13-year-old Negro boy was held today in a youth shelter for his own protection after arson investigators said he admitted setting a fire that left 600 persons homeless in Newark's predominantly Negro Central Ward.

The boy, arrested at his home Wednesday, set the fire with matches and then watched from a rooftop as it quickly spread over a two-block tenement area. Fire Director John Cauffield said.

Cauffield said the boy, who was charged with juvenile delinquency, was "held for his own protection because of feelings in the community" after the week-end fire. It was also feared the boy might set another blaze, Cauffield said.

The boy, Cauffield said, is not presently attending school and lives near the scene of the fire, which raged over two square blocks.

The fire destroyed 36 buildings, damaged 31 others and caused an insured loss of $750,000, the American Insurance Association reported.

Mexico Holds, Frees Suspect In King Killing

Police Claimed Man Resembled Hunted Fugitive

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexican authorities questioned today a U.S. citizen they said resembles the man wanted on a charge of slaying of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., then released him without pressing any charges.

Daniel David Kennedy of Baltimore, who said he was on a walking tour of the State of Sonora, denied any connection with King's death. An FBI agent, identified only as Mr. Smith, said there was no resemblance between Kennedy and the suspect, James Earl Ray, according to police in the city of Hermosillo.

'No Connection'

Lt. Roberto Fletcher of the judicial police in Caborca, Sonora, had taken Kennedy into custody from a Caborca hotel.

In Baltimore, Kennedy's mother, Pearl E. Kennedy, said, "There is just no connection. He doesn't even look like him (Ray)."

"It was impossible for him to do it," said Mrs. Kennedy. "He wouldn't even kill a fly, let alone kill a human being."

Mrs. Kennedy said her 41-year-old son left Baltimore March 24 to go to Mexico—"he wanted to take off, that's all"—and that he telephoned her from there on Sunday.

Fletcher said he picked the man up about 6 p.m. Wednesday in a cafe in Caborca, which is about 80 miles southwest of Nogales, Ariz. The officer said he took the man in because of his similarity to published photographs of Ray.

Fletcher said the man crossed the border at Nogales on April 7 and told him he had walked to Caborca.

Norway King Olav Welcomed by LBJ

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson welcomed King Olav of Norway to the White House today and pledged continued U.S. interest in European affairs.

Johnson repeatedly noted U.S. efforts during the years of the Marshall Plan and the Truman Doctrine to assist European reconstruction after World War II.

And he said, while "there is no doubt that Europe is once again very vital and prosperous," there "should be no doubt majesty." The United States stands as close to Europe as it did in the postwar years.

The President, Mrs. Johnson and representatives of the diplomatic corps met the 64-year-old monarch on the White House lawn as he arrived for a two-day state visit by helicopter from Williamsburg, Va. Johnson noted the more than three million Americans of Norwegian descent in the United States and said, "There almost no doubt that Europe is once again very vital and prosperous." This is Olav's first trip to the United States since he became king in 1957.

Red Bombers' Future Disputed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Air Force and civilian analysts differ sharply in a Pentagon intelligence dispute already casting a shadow over U.S. plans to defend against Soviet bombers of the 1970s.

Basically at issue is the soundness of a national-level assessment that the Soviet will not develop a supersonic strategic bomber with far-reaching missiles during the next six years.

Gen. John P. McConnell, Air Force chief of staff, thinks they will and argues the United States should build some new 2,000 mile-per-hour interceptors able to shoot them down.

Civilian Planners
Instead, McNamara went along with his civilian planners who figured $1 billion could be saved if the Air Force put a new missile system in an existing fighter, the F106, part of the present air defense network.

Although this plane was developed in the 1950s, cost-effectiveness studies showed that a souped-up version known as the F106X would be just as good as the Mach 3 F12, if a few hundred miles an hour slower.

McNamara also based his thinking on the National Intelligence Estimate (NIE) of what the Soviets might be expected to do in the area of strategic bombers between now and 1976, the period in question.

This projection, drawn up about last October, was that the Soviet Union would stick generally with the strategic bomber force it already has. This includes 155 bombers capable of reaching the United States without refueling.

McConnell, testifying before the Senate Armed Services Committee in February, said, "I don't agree with" and "I don't subscribe to" the NIE view.

The four-star general said he felt the Soviets would indeed put into operation a new supersonic bomber capable of "delivering an extremely long-range, high speed air-to-ground missile" against the United States by 1976.

The F106X would be inadequate to deal with this threat, McConnell declared.

108 Human Years

Old Cavalry Horse Just Fading Away

FT. RILEY, Kan. (AP) — Old Chief's days of luxury are stretching on and on at Ft. Riley.

Illnesses may slow down the 36-year-old last surviving Army cavalry horse but so far he's weathered them.

Last week Chief had an attack of colic and went through what his handler termed "a pretty rough time."

But, says Spec. 5 Ronald Haley, 26, who has taken care of chief for 5½ months, "He's doing much better now. He's eating, walking and standing much better. But he sure had me worried last week."

As Haley spoke, the former cavalry mount was out in a pasture doing what he's been doing since 1953—taking it easy.

Haley said Chief is alert and has a good appetite for a horse his age, which veterinarians say is equal to 108 human years.

Chief has lost about 150 pounds since the first of the year when he came down with acute arthritis, Haley reported. Since then he's also had three attacks of colic and went off his feed each time.

Foaled in 1932 near Scottsbluff, Neb., Chief arrived at Ft. Riley in 1941 and served in both the 10th and 9th Cavalry before he was retired 15 years ago.

The last of the many cavalry horses that saw service before mechanization, he will remain on the Army rolls until his death—eating, loafing and getting attention.

N. Y. Protest in Third Day

Students Try to Halt Columbia Classes

NEW YORK (AP) — Student demonstrators pushed their tumultuous protest at Columbia University into a third day today, demanding fellow students boycott classes and blocking some with human barricades at three buildings.

Tensions rose as opponents of the protest sought to attend classes and confronted demonstrators blocking entrances to the classroom buildings. But the rest of the campus remained relatively calm as morning classes began.

Cancels Classes

The university had canceled evening classes Wednesday and virtually sealed off its campus despite the earlier release of the acting dean and two other administrators from a Hamilton Hall office where they had been held hostage for 24 hours.

Classes were resumed today but demonstrators blocking Hamilton Hall, the main classroom building, and the architecture and graduate classroom buildings effectively halted attendance at midmorning.

Several students, angered at being blocked from classes, threatened to return later with reinforcements.

About 50 students remained overnight in the ransacked office of the university president, Dr. Grayson Kirk, in Low Memorial Library. Some 200 Negroes occupied Hamilton Hall and proclaimed it "Malcolm X University."

In a statement to newsmen, the university said "every effort has been made to avoid force."

Officials however took the precaution Wednesday of asking city police to enter Columbia's grounds for the first time in three years. The officers remained in a command office in the same building as Kirk's office.

A meeting between President Kirk and a delegation of Negroes from Hamilton Hall broke up at 4 a.m. with no apparent progress in resolving the dispute.

Elsewhere there were these developments.

About 300 Negro students at Boston University ended a day-long sit-in behind chained doors when the university president promised to work for most of their demands including expanded Negro enrollment.

—Students at Trinity College in Hartford, Conn., ended a similar sit-in early Wednesday when the administration agreed to meet demands for increased scholarship aid to Negro students.

Plans for Gym

At issue in the Columbia protest—which involved only a few hundred of the 27,500 students enrolled—were the school's plans for a new gym in a nearby

Hue-Area Manpower, Supply Buildup Halted

Intense Fight Expected of Reds in North

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese paratroopers have moved close to A Shau Valley to cut off North Vietnamese building up manpower and supplies there for a possible blow at Hue or other northern cities, military spokesman said today.

The U.S. 1st Cavalry Division, in a directive, warned its officers to expect a high level of enemy action, possibly an offensive in late April or early May in the Hue area.

In Saigon, the National Police Directorate told the people the enemy was planning another big attack on the capital. This was the first official warning to the population although the South Vietnamese army has been put on full alert in the 11 surrounding provinces.

Allied Drive

The South Vietnamese move to positions east of A Shau Valley could be the start of a major allied drive against that North Vietnamese stronghold stretching 25 miles along the border of Laos in the far north.

Allied forces have not ventured into the valley in force in the two years since North Vietnamese troops overran the U.S. Special Forces camp at A Shau and turned the valley into their biggest supply base in South Vietnam.

Amid round-the-clock pounding of the valley by J.S. B52 bombers, nearly 2,000 South Vietnamese paratroopers launched Operation Lam Son 216 last Friday, but it was not announced until today for security reasons.

A government communique, giving the first report of significant action, said the paratroopers destroyed 10 North Vietnamese three-quarter-ton trucks and seized 330 pounds of dynamite 16 miles southwest of Hue on Highway 547.

Funnel Route

North Vietnamese war materials and troops move down the Ho Chi Minh trail through Laos into the A Shau Valley and from there are funneled along Highway 547 eastward to the Hue area. Intelligence sources report there are 20 enemy battalions within striking distance of Hue, and the aim of the South Vietnamese operation is to cut their major supply route.

The Vietnamese communique said troops of the 3rd Airborne Task Force moved into the vicinity of A Shau on a search and destroy mission. A spokesman said contact with the enemy has been sporadic.

There was no mention of U.S. forces in the operation. But the valley has been subjected to relentless saturation bombing for more than three weeks by the U.S. Air Force's B52 bombers, its biggest warplanes.

New Roads

The B52s kept up their campaign today, again attacking suspected troops concentrations, trucks, bivouac areas and bunkers. Recent intelligence reports have told of troops and materials massing in the valley and of new roads being built, leading U.S. officers to believe a new enemy offensive against Hue may be building up.

While attention focused on the A Shau Valley, U.S. sources said the five F111 fighter-bombers remaining at American bases in Thailand still have not flown since the crash Monday night of the third F111 lost in the plane's first month of combat.

The sources denied that the $6-million plane had been grounded again. "I imagine they wanted to look them over," one source said.

The F111s were grounded March 30 after two of the six sent to the Vietnam theater crashed in their first week of combat flying. They resumed missions against North Vietnam after two replacements were sent from Nevada.

Other U.S. warplanes flew 116 missions against North Vietnam's southern panhandle. Pilots reported destroying or damaging 31 trucks. The deepest penetration was a strike on two trucks two miles below the 19th parallel.

Two Women Die In 3-Car Crash Near Milwaukee

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A three-car crash Wednesday claimed the lives of two women, bringing Wisconsin's 1968 highway death toll to 302, compared with 240 on this date in record 1967.

Mrs. David Fitzgerald, 43, of Whitefish Bay and Mrs. Harold Hughes, 68, of Port Washington were killed Wednesday in the Milwaukee suburb of Glendale.

Officials said Mrs. Fitzgerald's car collided with another car, then hit a car driven by Harold Hughes. Mrs. Hughes was a passenger in her husband's car. Hughes, a former Ozaukee County clerk, was seriously injured.

Mrs. Fitzgerald's husband is vice president of the Fall River Foundry Co. of Fall River in Columbia County.

Holdup Men Pause To Sell Cigarettes

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — Two young men took time out from their holdup at a service station Wednesday to sell a package of cigarettes. The customer walked in as the two men, one armed with a double-barreled shotgun, were taking $80 from the cash register after clouting the attendant on the head, police said. Police arrested two youths later and recovered cash and a shotgun.

Ready to Run Draft Rockefeller Enthusiasts Stirring Up Midwest Support

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two emissaries for New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller are heading into the Midwest today in a bid to generate a Republican presidential draft.

Nonaligned party members generally doubt they'll succeed. But Rockefeller himself says he thinks the draft movement for him is gaining momentum—and says he's ready to run.

UW Expulsion Policy Change Suggested

MADISON (AP)—A special 14-member University of Wisconsin student-faculty committee has recommended that the school abandon its policy of expelling students for disrupting campus activities.

It recommended that suspensions take the place of expulsions, noting that a suspension leaves the way open for a student to be reinstated. Suspensions would range up to a maximum of three years.

The committee, headed by law Prof. Samuel Mermin, was set up after violent antiwar demonstrations on the campus last Oct. 18. Campus operations were disrupted and injuries and wholesale arrests followed protests against Dow Chemical Co. job recruiting on the campus.

The university later expelled three students for disrupting disciplinary hearings called to investigate campus protests.

The report will be considered at a special faculty meeting in May.

New Approach Informal Telephone Negotiations Continue

WASHINGTON (AP) — The union leader directing the eight-day-old nationwide telephone strike says chances look good for breaking the deadlock in wage talks.

More than 200,000 members of President Joseph A. Beirne's AFL-CIO Communications Workers union are involved in the walkout in about 40 states, but there has been little effect on most telephone service across the country.

"At this point, I can report definitely that things are looking up," Beirne said Wednesday of continuing informal talks with Bell Telephone System officials.

Beirne said negotiators on both sides now favor abandoning the 18-month wage reopener provision—which set off the first nationwide telephone strike in 21 years—and writing a new three-year agreement.

"Talks have centered on a brand new contractual agreement, to give parties an opportunity to break out of the im-

Appropriations Chief Hopes for Compromise In Tax-Spending Issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman George H. Mahon of the House Appropriations Committee, a key figure in the long congressional dispute over a proposed tax hike and spending cuts, says he is open to a compromise aimed at settling the issue.

"The need for a reduction in spending and the need for a tax bill are so great," said the Texas Democrat, "that I'm open to some kind of compromise to break this log jam."

Senate and House conferees have been working to hammer out a final version of the Senate-passed bill to impose a 10 per cent income tax surcharge, as requested by President Johnson, tied to a $6 billion spending cut.

The administration has talked of a maximum $4 billion cut but shows signs of accepting a $5-billion slash, according to Sen. George A. Smathers, D-Fla., one of the conferees.

Solution Possible

The Appropriations Committee has been unable to agree on reductions. But after meeting with Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler and Budget Director Charles J. Zwick, Mahon indicated in an interview a solution may be in sight.

He said a final decision is urgent because "we are in a very serious fiscal situation."

The Senate-House conferees met all day Wednesday without getting anywhere. But they scheduled another session for next Tuesday, expressing hope the House Appropriations Committee would find a solution.

Meanwhile, another influential figure in the year-long dispute repeated his contention that any tax hike must be accompanied by a spending hold-down.

View Repeated

Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of the House Ways and Means Committee, told a Chicago audience he will insist on a cutback in authorized but uncommitted funds for future programs, as well as a lid on spending during the coming fiscal year.

Chairman William McClesney Martin Jr. of the Federal Reserve Board came in for sharp criticism from a Congress member following his statement that the nation is in its worst financial crisis since 1931 and must cut the deficit in the domestic budget as well as the international balance of payments deficit.

Rep. Chet Holifield, D-Calif., told the House that Martin should justify his warnings of financial crisis or he would leave in question his fitness to hold the chairmanship.

1,465,492 Catholics in Wisconsin

NEW YORK (AP)—Wisconsin has 1,465,492 Roman Catholics, the Official Catholic Directory for 1968 reported Wednesday. This is a gain of 10,000 over last year.

The Roman Catholic population in the 10 county Milwaukee archdiocese is 699,728, the directory said. Other Wisconsin divisions totals are Green Bay, 312,527; La Crosse, 181,875; Madison, 184,253 and Superior, 82,536.

The director said that the number of new converts and infant baptisms were down nationwide in 1967, but for the 15th straight year, enrollment at church supported universities rose.

But it added that grade and high school enrollment dropped.

The director said there are 47,468,333 Roman Catholics in the United States—or 23.7 per cent of the total population. This is an increase of 603,423 over

Governors' Potential Power Is Going Untapped

By WALTER R. MEARS
WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic governors have affirmed what their Republican counterparts had been proving for 18 months: Apparent political power and the ability to use it are two different things.

The 26 Republican governors and the 24 Democrats have been unable to create consensus among themselves on a presidential nominee for their respective parties.

The Democrats talked about it in St. Louis April 15 and got nowhere. Republicans chose more fashionable retreats for their disagreement—White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., Jackson Hole, Wyo., Palm Beach, Fla.

No Major Benefit

There are individual commitments to candidates in each party, but no one has welded a governors' bloc of major benefit to a single candidate.

It's possible many governors can't exercise total control over their national convention delegates.

Democrat Harold Hughes of Iowa acknowledged this difficulty. Hughes, a Senate candidate, said people supporting his candidacy include Democrats backing all three top contenders for the presidential nomination, Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy and Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

A McCarthy agent put it more succinctly: "If Hughes comes out for Bobby our kids in Iowa will go after him."

Not Alone

Hughes evidently is not alone in that situation. His Democratic gubernatorial colleagues, feeling the pressure for presidential commitments and hoping to ease it, were generally delighted to adopt a statement in St. Louis promising decisions of conscience on the White House contest—but not right now.

Similarly, Republican governors in June 1967 advocated that uncommitted delegations be sent to the GOP convention.

Texas Gov. John B. Connally and Calvin L. Rampton of Utah, both Johnson allies, were two of the men who asked that the Democratic governors meet in St. Louis earlier this month.

Rush to Kennedy

Behaving their request, it appeared, was a concern that with President Johnson out of the race, there might be a gubernatorial rush to the Kennedy camp. Administration loyalists wanted to slow things down and that Humphrey support was not foreclosed even before he announced his candidacy.

But there was no rush to Kennedy.

A small minority of the 26 Republican governors has been trying to line up presidential commitments among their colleagues almost since 1964, with an identical lack of success.

First, Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York argued for a lineup behind Michigan's George Romney. Gov. John H. Chafee of Rhode Island joined him, but nobody else did.

Rockefeller Support

Meanwhile, Govs. Spiro T. Agnew of Maryland and Tom McCall of Oregon talked about broad, if unexpressed, state house support for Rockefeller. Then Romney dropped out of the race. Rockefeller talked more like a candidate, but again there was no consensus.

Like the Democrats, the Republican governors have consistently denied they are out to stop anybody in the presidential race. In their case, anybody means Richard M. Nixon.

So far, the governors have been true to their statement. They haven't slowed down the Nixon drive, and they haven't started one for anybody else.

'Unauthorized Ideas' Harmful, Pope Declares

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI bitterly warned today that a "whirlwind" of unauthorized ideas in the Roman Catholic Church is threatening the "vital renewal" decreed by the Second Vatican Council.

"Renewal yes, arbitrary change no," he declared to the 30,000 pilgrims and tourists packed into St. Peter's Basilica for his weekly general audience.

In one of his strongest denunciations of what he considers to be extremism in seeking change in the postcouncil era, the pontiff said he and the hierarchy viewed upheaval in the Church with "deep apprehension and at times with great bitterness."

He insisted on the immutability of Church dogma and the Church's constitutional laws.

He reiterated his belief that some Catholics were misinterpreting the ideas of Pope John XXIII, who launched the campaign to update the Church.

Speaking on the same subject at a general audience April 3, he decreed "deviations" in the Church following the 1962-65 council and said Pope John wanted the council to seek new ways to express dogma to modern man, not change it.

The Pope's warnings came on an extremely busy day for him. He held four separate audiences for waves of tourists and Italians who descended on the Vatican on this 23rd anniversary of the liberation of Italy from Nazi control—a national holiday.

Apostolic Palace

First he greeted several groups in San Damasus courtyard in back of the Apostolic Palace.

Then he met others in the Room of the Benedictions. The general audience in the basilica followed, but so many people were unable to get in that another audience was given in the San Damasus courtyard.

At the end of his activities the Pope, still not fully recovered from his November operation, was speaking with a raspy and at times weak voice.

The Voices of Violence

We sympathize with the white couple in Milwaukee, who were victimized and threatened by two Negro youths. But we have no sympathy at all for the advice given to them by Judge Christ Seraphim.

The threat of violence to both black and white especially in our larger cities has prompted a resort to weapons for defense. In some cities there are marksmanship classes for housewives. The sale of guns to both black and white has increased in many areas. Concern has prompted both strong backing of and almost hysterical opposition to gun control laws. The Christian Science Monitor suggested editorially that the time had come for all guns to be prohibited in the nation except those needed by law enforcement officials.

But Judge Seraphim advised the threatened couple to get themselves a gun and be prepared to use it if necessary to defend their property.

Daniel P. Moynihan, director of the M.I.T.-Harvard Joint Center for Urban Studies and former Assistant Secretary of Labor, warns against "the descent to violence as a way of life" and the growing tendency to make violence inevitable and acceptable. He flatly states in a recent article that "there must be a stop to this trend toward violence and in particular an immediate and passionate objection to any voice that gives aid and comfort to the present drift of events." It is bad enough that a man like Stokely Carmichael gives such aid and comfort when he advises Negroes to get a gun and take a honkey with them. But it is more disturbing when a man in Judge Seraphim's position gives almost the same advice to a white couple.

If the nation continues on this course toward a rifle hanging over every fireplace, loaded for quick use, we can begin to say that our experiment in government has failed. At this point we tend to believe that those who advocate a resort to deadly weapons — whether one is white or black — are already saying that our democracy is a failure. And when a man whose responsibility it is to uphold the law through due process in the courts advises Americans to be prepared to shoot it out with other Americans, we must seriously question his qualifications for that office.

Like Mayor Richard Daley's later modified opinion that the police should shoot to kill looters and arsonists, Judge Seraphim's advice probably is the result of frustration and anger. But we expect better judgment from leaders in the nation.

How Hot Is the Trail?

The implication given by Attorney General Ramsey Clark that he and the Federal Bureau of Investigation were hot on the trail of the killer of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., may have been justified during the widespread Negro violence following the killing. But if the trail is really a cold and confused one, misleading statements can only serve to make things worse in the long run.

There has been a considerable amount of confusion which may be due to anxiety over bringing the killer to justice in order to slow down the riots. The FBI first issued an arrest warrant for Eric Starvo Galt and then quickly withdrew it. It announced that there was no evidence of conspiracy in the killing but a few days later stated that Galt had indeed conspired with his brother. Finally the FBI came out with the information that Galt was really one James Earl Ray according to fingerprints found in connection with the King slaying. Pictures of Ray certainly resemble the pictures of the alleged Galt. But there are still discrepancies, including an alleged identification of Galt in New Orleans at the time Ray was definitely in prison in Missouri.

Attorney General Clark said on television a few days after the slaying that the killer was "on the run" and he gave the impression that the hounds were at his heels. It is possible that his assurances cooled off some Negro agitators. But if an arrest is not made of the suspected killer before too long, Negroes can quite reasonably suspect that they were once again being misled by the white establishment. Such a lack of confidence could be far more damaging to future relations than the temporary angers that erupted in the cities after the slaying.

The New Policy in Vietnam

Secretary of Defense Clark Clifford told delegates to the American Newspaper Publishers meeting in New York that "the increased effectiveness of the South Vietnamese government and its fighting forces" means that the United States can gradually turn over more and more responsibility for the war to the South Vietnamese. But it seems rather apparent that the change in policy originated in Washington rather than through the performance of the South Vietnamese.

United States officials in Vietnam have worked toward better equipping and training the Vietnamese troops. But until lately it seems to have been a somewhat half-hearted effort. The Vietnamese were not supplied with the latest weapons — the M16 rifles, grenade launchers, machine guns and mortars — in anywhere near enough numbers. Vietnamese troops, like those in South Korea, had complained for some time that the Communists had better weapons. The largely unchecked corruption among some South Vietnamese officials meant that such supplies might be sidetracked into the black market or even to the Viet Cong so there was something less than enthusiasm in spending American money for Vietnamese equipment. The lack of morale among some Vietnamese troops also contributed to this lack of confidence in their ability or willingness to fight. Various reports came back of Vietnamese refusing to come to the aid of their fellows, the casualty lists reflected the primary American role and Australian officers made it clear that they didn't want the support of the unreliable Vietnamce.

So it seems a little doubtful that suddenly — just as the Tet offensive exploded, Clark Clifford took over as Secretary of Defense, and General Westmoreland requested more than 200,000 additional American troops — the South Vietnamese have turned into a capable fighting force.

The change really came about because of an agonizing review of the war and its ramifications at the highest echelons in Washington. Secretary Dean Rusk insists that such a review is continually going on. But it is clear that the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese attacks in February in the large cities, the isolation of Khe Sanh, the military recommendations of what it would take for the United States to win the war, and the fear that any South Vietnamese infrastructure was collapsing from within, brought about a much more comprehensive review. Former Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara left his post and the New Hampshire primary convinced President Johnson of the extent of the opposition to the war in the nation. These are the factors that have suddenly made the South Vietnamese more reliable.

And oddly enough a growing responsibility may actually come out of the review which happened six thousand miles from Saigon. As some Administration critics have said for a long time, the government of South Vietnam had to be convinced that it must bear more responsibility for both the military struggle and for winning the allegiance of the peasants. It will make the serious attempt to do so only when convinced that the United States is not going to continue "to do more and more," as Secretary Clifford put it.

The change in American policy may be primarily political in an election year to lessen criticism of the Johnson Administration. It still appears that American troops are doing most of the fighting. The South Vietnamese simply may not be able to muster the will and determination to defend their country against both the North Vietnamese and dissident South Vietnamese. If peace talks include the National Liberation Front, the current rulers in Saigon may already be on the way out. The change in American policy may indeed be merely an attempt to get out of Vietnam as soon as possible with some amount of honor.

Editors Appleton Post — Sam's ex-Crescent had much to do in our triumph in the late election. It represents the man and his party.

Honest voters are beginning to get their eyes opened and are determined not to be "wooled" any longer by his nonsensical bosh. When he comes out here to enlighten the dear people, he runs against "John Bull" who exposes his sophistry and Sam gets out of humor and uses phrases purely Democratic.

McCarthy Statements Aimed at Winning Knee-Jerk Liberal Aid

BY WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY

It was a very bad weekend for Senator Eugene McCarthy, illustrative of the almost inevitable appeal, once you get out on that left wing, to radicalize your politics so as to attempt an end run around your opponent. What the senator desires, is to replace Bobby in the affections of the tough left. As things stood when he entered the race, McCarthy had Johnson on his right, and Kennedy on his left. Why? It isn't really fair, in American politics, to demand that one exactly justify a politician's situation on the spectrum. He occupies it as a matter of the relations of forces.

But now, with the emergence of Hubert Humphrey who will commandeer the right wing of the Democratic Party, McCarthy needs to build up his left, particularly in challenging Kennedy in Indiana. Accordingly, McCarthy has made a string of statements especially appealing to our old friend the knee-jerk liberal.

He Cited History

First is the call for paying ransom to the North Koreans in return for the crew of the Pueblo. That has a special appeal for Americans who like to think of the United States as a great big brawling international bully who needs an occasional dose of pride reducing. It is no less a dangerous suggestion to make because Professor McCarthy was able to cite a couple of precedents from imperial Roman and English history. The Romans and the British, on the few occasions when they paid out ransom, were dealing with the repatriation of soldiers who had been taken in combat, or rescuing them from certain death. Our crew off North Korea was not ica, with 12 other Wisconsin farm families on the "Tourists for Cattle" plan used by the Colombian dairy producers and U.S. dairy cattle breeders. Officers that year of the Outagamie County Young Republicans were Jerome Gresen, Appleton, chairman, Patrick Murphy, Appleton, vice chairman; Gerald Hein, Appleton, secretary, and Jack Roome, Kaukauna, treasurer.

David Dean was elected president of the Park School Parent-Teacher Association, Kaukauna. Other new officers were Mrs. Hollis Whitman, vice president; Mrs. Lavern May, secretary.

Prof LaVahn Maesch, of Lawrence Conservatory of Music, was to present the second faculty recital Easter Sunday night in Memorial Chapel. He was to play one of his own compositions in the program.

Members of the cast for "Sonny-Jane," senior class play at Shiocton High School, were Katherine Mielke, Arleen Scott, Virginia Schwall, Elmer Johnson, Shirley Rusch, Gordon Poole and Adele Klitzke.

Thursday, April 24, 1958.

Mr. and Mrs. Hilmer Mueller, route 3, Seymour, were touring Columbia, South Amer-engaged in combat, nor was it inside Korean territorial waters. The precedent of America's ransom for the recovery of the Cuban soldiers we lost at the Bay of Pigs is once again irrelevant. The soldiers had fought against Cuba, were effectively under our control; and our military failure to protect them threw the burden for their relief on our rich if unsteady shoulders.

Demand on Rusk

Then Senator McCarthy suggested that Secretary Rusk resign. He was even so obliging as to designate his successor, Senator Mansfield. It is interesting to see a man who has so steadfastly in the past defended the prerogatives of the chief executive, forwarding advice to the President in tones that recall the peremptoriness with which Thaddeus Stevens used to address Andrew Johnson. The notion that Rusk's resignation is critical to the success of the negotiations with North Vietnamese is, of course, politicians' voodoo.

Senator McCarthy should be gently reminded that he has won neither the nomination, nor the election; and he might also be reminded that almost one half of those who voted for him in New Hampshire, did so believing him to be hawkier than Lyndon Johnson; even as it has recently transpired that many of those who propose in Indiana to vote for Kennedy, will be doing so because, in the words of one interviewee, "he'll bomb the hell out of North Vietnam and end this war."

The Hoover Case

And then, finally, the iconoclast's pilgrimage to the shrine of the defamers of J. Edgar Hoover. Senator McCarthy tried half-heartedly to protect himself from utterly abandoned impiety by saying that his proposal that J. Edgar Hoover be fired had nothing to do with "the man." McCarthy is too skillful a practitioner to deal so carelessly with the language. If he had meant to compliment Mr. Hoover on his accomplishments, he'd have done so. If he had meant to make a case for the automatic retirement of all public servants at, say, age 70, he could simultaneously have proposed the retirement of Earl Warren and John McCormack. Instead, he chose the bill of attainder route, neglecting even a ritual compliment to a man who during the fifty years of his most distinguished career in the executive branch of government has been less susceptible to moral and intellectual corruption than one aspiring politician showed himself to be over a single weekend.

Wisconsin Report

Public Shows Little Interest in Equitable State Tax Assessments

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

MADISON — A careful count of political verbiage and the time consumed on it in Wisconsin political discussion and debate undoubtedly would show that the property tax issue or worry in the state community. The legislature has responded ed to the fact sporadically and uncertainly. Some of the receipts of the selective sales taxes levied during the last few years were dedicated to the relief of property tax rates in the high tax districts, but the motivation there was to disarm the opposition to the sales tax, at least to the extent that the lawmakers were moved by the plight of the property taxpayer. In any event, amelioration of the property tax load was light and has long since been overtaken by succeeding boosts in the tax rate in typical jurisdictions.

A more solid reform, also made possible by the levying of the sales tax, was the significant beginning made toward the goal of getting rid of the inherently inequitable and often inaccurate personal property tax. The current state budget provides for state treasury payments to cancel 60 per cent of the liability of personal property taxpayers. The intention of the sponsors of that reform was the ultimate elimination of the personal property levy, although that, of course, depends on the will and the circumstances of legislatures yet to be elected.

PUZZLE OF DISINTEREST

Yet the solicitous campaign season discussion by the politicians about the weight of the general property tax goes on, and the grumbling of the typical taxpayer continues.

Because there is no real prospect for early relief — and in fact almost a certainty of a continued rise in the property tax curve — observers of public affairs find it hard to explain why there has been so little interest in a reform of the tax machinery that would be devoted to assuring equality of the burden, even if relief for the tax scale for the state on the whole probably is not in sight.

The best qualified students of tax administration have indicated their doubts about the efficiency of tax assessment in this state for years.

One of the major objectives of the Knowles administration in the 1967 legislature was to improve the system through an optional method of creating county-wide assessment services, manned by professionals, to replace the helter-skelter, horseback judgment that prevails in so many jurisdictions. But the movement failed.

"Home rule" was threatened, an obdurate majority in the Assembly insisted, quite ignoring the optional feature of the bill, and pretending not to hear those who pleaded for the ideal of accurate and therefore fair assessments for all.

To borrow a phrase from Dr. Jim Dan Hill, the distinguished educator, accurate assessment machinery has about the same relation to home rule as bull-fighting has to agriculture.

WISCONSIN LAGS BEHIND

Mayor Otto Festge of Madison the other day recounted that some years ago he attended a town meeting, and to his surprise, found himself elected town assessor.

He explained that he had no training or experience fitting him for such technical and important work, but he was chosen, notwithstanding. It is no great surprise to hear that the mayor is now a firm advocate of a professional assessment system, on a county-wide basis.

Wisconsin leaders like to boast about the progressive spirit and performance of their state in public affairs, and to a considerable degree such attitudes are justified. But a recent survey of the assessment systems in the states of the country suggests strongly that Wisconsin is laggard in this vital sphere of government, at the least.

The study shows that Wisconsin has the dubious distinction of having the largest number of assessment districts in the country, with 1,834, or about one-eighth of all of the assessment districts in the 50 states.

Shown such a record, those recalcitrant legislators who resort to the spurious cry of "home rule" would undoubtedly retort that everybody is out of step except Wisconsin.

damaging their self-esteem, which is a much harder and more commendable feat.

A "modern luxury apartment" is too often one in which the thickness of the carpets is equalled only by the thinness of the walls.

Escalating the war to end it before our resources are overstrained strikes me as much the same fallacious reasoning as the motorist who speeds up to reach a filling station before his gas runs out.

If all persons were created with equal opportunities, then the inequalities in society would be just, for they would be based on aptitude, not on accident of circumstance; and the drive for equal opportunities is not a way of making everybody equal, but of obtaining fair inequalities, not unfair ones.

Listening to George Wallace rant, I am reminded of the delicious remark of Sen. Eugene Millikan, interrupting a colleague on the floor with: "If the distinguished Senator will allow me, I will try to extricate him from his thoughts."

Czech Notes Soviet Worry Over Threat

PRAGUE (AP) — The Soviet might not correspond much Union is openly worried about more to realities than to set categories of thinking, wrote Milan Syrucek of the Communist youth daily Mlada Fronta.

He said Moscow's concept of communism is "completely directive" and therefore conflicting with the current liberalization here. As a result, Syrucek said, the Kremlin is "apprehensive and suspicious" and busy looking for "imperialist ideological infiltration" in Czechoslovakia.

(In Moscow, the Soviet Communist Party newspaper Pravda, in an apparent dig at Czechoslovakia, said today that "only those for whom the interests of the working people are alien can champion 'absolute' freedom, even including the freedom of anti-Socialist activity in the countries of socialism.")

"Own Principles"

Syrucek said the Soviet leadership had "not yet explored the aspects of democracy and socialism," but on the contrary was "emphasizing the validity of its own principles not only at home but also abroad."

This was an obvious reference to the current preparatory conference of Communist parties in Budapest, Romania, Yugoslavia and Red China are staying away, charging that Moscow is using the conference to reassert its dominance over the world's Communist parties.

The report quoted Soviet officials as expressing concern over the echo which the changes in Czechoslovakia have found in the Western press.

"I was reminded of Lenin's word that when your enemy praises you it proved that you are committing mistakes," Syrucek wrote. "There also were warnings that the United States is investing huge sums of money in subversive activities in socialist countries."

Soviet officials, according to the report, are "trying to respect as strictly as possible the principle of noninterference" and for that reason have restricted public information about Czechoslovakia to reports on Central Committee proceedings and quotes from official speeches.

This practice, the report said, not only reflected "reluctance to infringe upon Czechoslovakia's sovereignty, but also reluctance to influence—positively or negatively—the views held by fraternal parties about events in Czechoslovakia."

among other things, the military threat facing this country.

The CIA draws it up each year, using its own information as well as data from the Defense Intelligence Agency, the National Security Agency, the State Department's Bureau of Intelligence and Research and other military and civilian agencies.

A few days ago, the Senate panel—having heard both sides in closed sessions on the defense budget—refused a Pentagon request for $28 million to get the F106X program rolling.

Sen. Howard W. Cannon, D-Nev., one of the committee members, termed shocking the Defense Department's approach to air defense needs.

"They are talking about putting a fire control (missile) system on an airplane that was last produced in 1960, and using that sometime in the 1970s as a so-called fighter interceptor," Cannon said. "It just doesn't make sense."

Compromise Predicted

As a result of the committee's action, Air Force officials say they are in doubt about what air defense plan will be approved, but think a compromise may be in order.

There were two leading proposals:

—The Pentagon's $12.3 billion system built around the F106, its new missile system and an orbiting control aircraft with a revolutionary "downward looking" radar capable of spotting low-flying bombers.

—The Air Force's $13.7 billion system built around the same components except with the F12 substituted for the F106.

Columbia Students Protest

Harlem park and its tie with the Institute for Defense Analysis.

Some members of the university and the surrounding community see the planned construction of the gym in Morning-side Park as a wrongful use of public property, depriving children of playing area.

Columbia, a private institution, leased part of the park several years ago during the administration of former Mayor Robert F. Wagner.

Demonstrators contend that the Institute of Defense Analysis not only aids the war in Vietnam, but also devises methods to control protests.

As the demonstration grew, there were threats of violence.

There were reports too that Harlem Negroes planned to join the students.

The university locked up buildings overnight and sealed all but two entrances.

There was some obvious student dissatisfaction with the Students for a Democratic Society, which organized the protest. About 200 persons gathered in front of Kirk's office windows and chanted "The S.D.S. must go!"

Partial Concession

In the 2 a.m. statement, the university disclosed that Kirk had offered a partial concession to the demonstrators' demand for amnesty for all those taking part in the protest.

"The president last evening transmitted to the black students who are occupying Hamilton Hall a proposal that if they left the building during the evening they would not be suspended although they would be placed on disciplinary probation," the statement said adding that no response had been received.

"The university administration is making every effort to reach a solution to the problems without resorting to police action," the statement concluded.

Earlier a faculty committee met in emergency session on the students' demands and recommended that construction on the gymnasium be halted but that ties to the IDA be continued. They also urged no amnesty and establishment of a tripartite committee to try the demonstrators.

Dollar Drain Fight Meeting Difficulty

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Johnson administration is running into trouble in its efforts to cut the international dollar drain this year by $3 billion.

Some government officials have already conceded privately the goal in some areas of the program will be extremely difficult, if not impossible, to meet.

But perhaps the sourest note in the entire picture is the deteriorating trade position which officials blame on inflation at home, strikes and the threat of strikes and what they call excessive wage settlements.

The net result is a sharp rise in imports and a decline in the trade surplus.

Trade Deficit
The Commerce Department underscored the problem Thursday by reporting the first trade deficit during March in three years. Imports exceeded exports by $157.7 million as imports rose slightly and exports dropped by 11.5 per cent.

Officials blamed an 11-day longshoremen's strike in New York for most of the March decline.

President Johnson unveiled his new balance-of-payments program on New Year's day in a fresh attempt to lick a perennial problem which produced a $3.57 billion deficit in 1967.

Although exact figures won't be available until mid-May, officials now look for substantial improvement in the deficit for the first three months of this year compared with the last three months of 1967.

Earlier Imbalance
But the deficit in the prior quarter was $1.85 billion and there's reportedly little chance it will drop to the quarterly level prevailing before devaluation of the British pound last November.

The quarterly drain during the first three quarters of last year ranged from $533 million to $638 million.

Johnson's new program called for Congressional action on a variety of fronts but Congress has yet to complete work on even one of them.

Passage of the proposed 10 per cent income tax surcharge is the keystone of the entire program.

Pass Through Town Quietly

MEDINA, Wash. (AP) — Shh If you're coming through Medina, do it quietly, especially in the early hours.

The mayor of this suburban Seattle town lives about 150 feet from the freeway. The town has a sound ordinance with a prescribed top of 95 decibels from a distance of 50 feet.

Early Wednesday morning the town's lone police car set up a sound meter about 50 feet from the highway. The average level from passing trucks was 90 decibels. One from Oregon was 99 and that cost the driver $25. Now the town is considering lowering the limit.

Gunman Frightened by Victim's Willingness lower level. Chan has sent his first secretary to the U.S. Embassy twice, and today's meeting was believed to be Sullivan's third. Previous meetings averaged 15 minutes.

Chan—described by U.S. diplomats as suave, experienced and an able diplomat—invariably serves his visitors Vietnamese tea.

Sources said he is always courteous and polite but thus far the meetings have been little more than exchange of notes with virtually no discussion of substance.

Sullivan and Hurwitch shook hands with Chan as they arrived and when they left.

All shutters of Chan's residence were closed and a huge North Vietnamese flag—big yellow star on red field—fluttered from the roof.

The embassy driver sat waiting in the car close to a porch at the end of a short drive leading through the garden filled with trees and flowering tropical shrubs.

North Vietnamese Embassy servants gathered behind the building to stare curiously at the parked car flying the American flag. One came to the unguarded gate to warn newsmen against entering the compound.

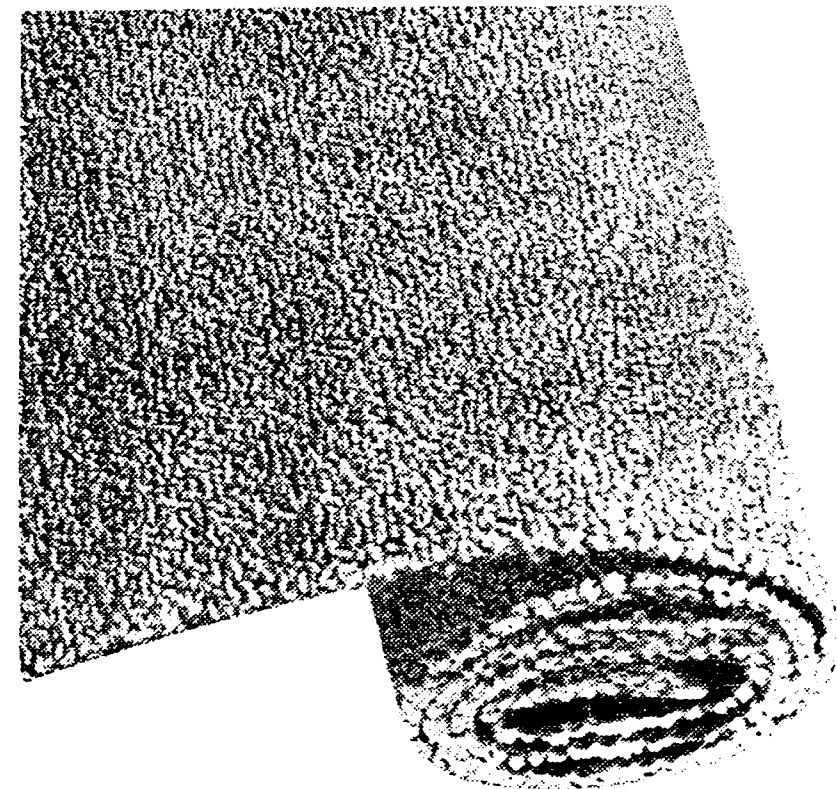

At the end of the meeting Sullivan and Hurwitch went back to the U.S. Embassy to cable an immediate report to Washington. Officials said direct radio circuits have been set-up, enabling coded messages to reach the White House within two minutes.

Prosecutor to Enter Private Law Practice

Sutton Will Leave Attorney General's Staff After Trial

WAUTOMA — Robert Sutton, assistant state attorney general who is playing the major role in the state's case against Ed Gein, revealed here Wednesday that he has entered private law practice and at the conclusion of the Gein case, will no longer be on the attorney general's staff.

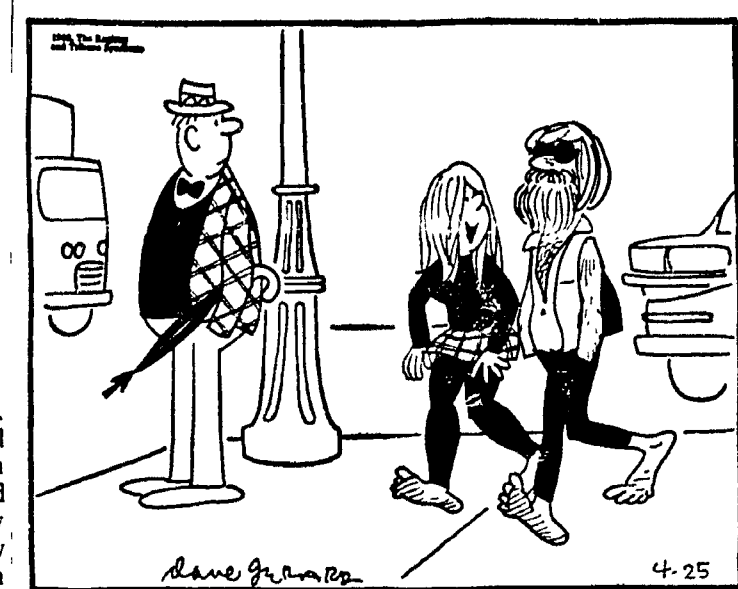

Sutton is being assisted in prosecuting the Gein case by Waushara County Dist. Atty. Howard Dutcher. Gein is charged with robbing and murdering Mrs. Bernice Worden on Nov. 16, 1957. Sutton has handled virtually all of the actual courtroom action in the case.

He said Wednesday he started with the Milwaukee law firm of Samson and Nash about a month ago, but has agreed to remain on a part-time basis on the attorney general's staff, to work on the Gein case. He has been working on the case since Gein was released from Central State Hospital last January after being found mentally able to stand trial.

Marquette Degree
Sutton, 31, worked in the attorney general's office nearly a year. A native of Denver, Colo., he attended Regis University there and received his law degree from Marquette University Law School in 1960. After receiving his degree, Sutton spent three years in the Air Force, in the Judge Advocate Corps. He was discharged a captain. He then practiced law in Milwaukee about six months, after which he was appointed to the Milwaukee County district attorney's staff. Sutton was there until taking the state job last June.

Moratorium Sought on State Recreational Land Buying

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — The State Conservation Commission has ordered a moratorium on recreational land condemnation actions, in deference to legislative criticisms and a planned legislative review of the commission's condemnation policies and record.

But Wednesday the State Conservation Division, in a seemingly apologetic letter to a legislative conservation committee, disclosed that it has encountered a landowner who insists that his land be condemned and made a part of the new Whitefish Bay State Park in Door County.

Lester P. Voigt, director of the Department of Natural Resources, related the incident with the apparent purpose of assuring legislators that his agency has not rescinded its previous moratorium announcement.

The name of the Door County landowner was withheld, but the State Conservation Commission was expected to approve the condemnation action at its meeting here today.

Tax Advantages
Several officials explained informally that in some circumstances there are tax advantages for a landowner who is willing to sell his land, but is enabled to have its value fixed through a court decision.

The conservation administration came under heavy fire during the last regular session of the legislature when residents of the Kettle Moraine Forest district in southeastern Wisconsin complained that it was using its condemnation powers as a club to persuade landowners who were reluctant to sell. A committee of the legislature held extensive hearings at the time. The moratorium order followed. More recently a resident of Crivitz filed a lawsuit in Dane County Circuit Court against the conservation division, complaining that he was misled into consenting to sell his land for a new state park in that area.

Phone Threat Received by King's Father

DETROIT (AP) — Dr. Martin Luther King Sr. says he received a threatening telephone call the day after his son was buried, and, "I'll have to listen now since they did make good."

"But," he said, "I'm still unafraid. I'm going to preach continually as I always have." He said he has been getting "dangerous calls" for a long time.

The elder King, pastor of the Ebenezer Baptist Church in Atlanta, spoke at a news conference in Detroit Monday. His visit to Detroit had been scheduled before Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., was shot in Memphis, Tenn., by an assassin April 4.

His late son "was 80 years ahead of his age," said the elder King, who pledged "To do all I can to carry out the program and commitment of my son," and asserted that unless the United States faces up to its racial problems, all will be lost.

Madison Possible Site for Gein Trial

Attorney Frinzi Says Proposed Site Would be More Convenient

WAUTOMA — The first decision Frinzi had said here April 9 was whether he planned to be in Europe for much of May, and explained, held in Madison, and could start that he did not see how the trial late next month or early in June.

However, Frinzi told a reporter Wednesday that he did not feel Gein should remain in jail much longer. He explained that extended confinement in jail could result in the need for further "therapy" for the Plainfield man who is accused of murdering and robbing Mrs. Bernice Worden on Nov. 16, 1957.

He also said he had cancelled a European trip he had planned for next month so he could give attention to the Gein case and possibly bring it in for trial earlier than anticipated.

Trial Delayed
Actually, the trial had originally been tentatively set for April 22, but issues of law during pre-trial motions delayed the start. One delay was caused when the issue of the validity of complaints and warrants against Gein in 1957 was taken to the Wisconsin Supreme Court for a ruling this month.

see the trial transferred to court in Dane County because it would be more convenient for witnesses, many of whom are employed by the state. Several witnesses are agents of the state crime laboratory. The Milwaukee attorney had indicated earlier that if the trial would be without a jury, he probably would not ask that it be held outside Wautoma, scene of all past proceedings in the Gein case.

Final decision on a trial site, and on a date for a trial is up to Gollmar.

Frinzi said the trial would probably be in two parts. The first would be to determine Gein's guilt or innocence on the two charges. If he is found guilty, the second part of the "bifurcated trial" would be to determine if he was sane or insane when he committed the alleged crimes. Frinzi said trial could take up to a week.

BB holes were found shot into four large colored windows on the southside of the school and a window was smashed out and partially cut with a glass cutter on the Willow Street side of the building. There was no entry to the school despite the window smashing.

Contractors and Masons Fail to Reach Agreement

Union Offer Rejected by 35 to 2 Vote

Members of the Fox Valley Contractors Association rejected a revised union proposal here Wednesday, sending the 20-county strike of bricklayers and cement finishers into its 18th day.

It was learned representatives of the association met at the Holiday Inn south of Appleton and by a 35-2 vote turned down the union's counter proposal for a new three-year contract.

Negotiators for the association and union then met Wednesday night at the Conway Hotel with state and federal mediators, with talks reportedly "breaking off completely."

"No agreement was reached," commented Merle Phalen, Fond du Lac, spokesman for the association which is comprised of 50 members and another 100 associated construction firms from Fond du Lac north to the Wisconsin-Michigan line.

"We were thoroughly disappointed with the action of the contractors," a union spokesman said, "The full responsibility for continuation of this strike now lies with the contractors."

There was every indication it will now be a long standoff.

Although the masons have discontinued picket lines at hundreds of jobsites throughout the Fox Valley and northern Wisconsin, they are keeping a watchful eye that no attempts are made to have bricklaying or cement-finishing work done.

Picket Lines

The union intends to immediately set up picket lines at any jobsites where their normal duties are being performed by others, the spokesman said.

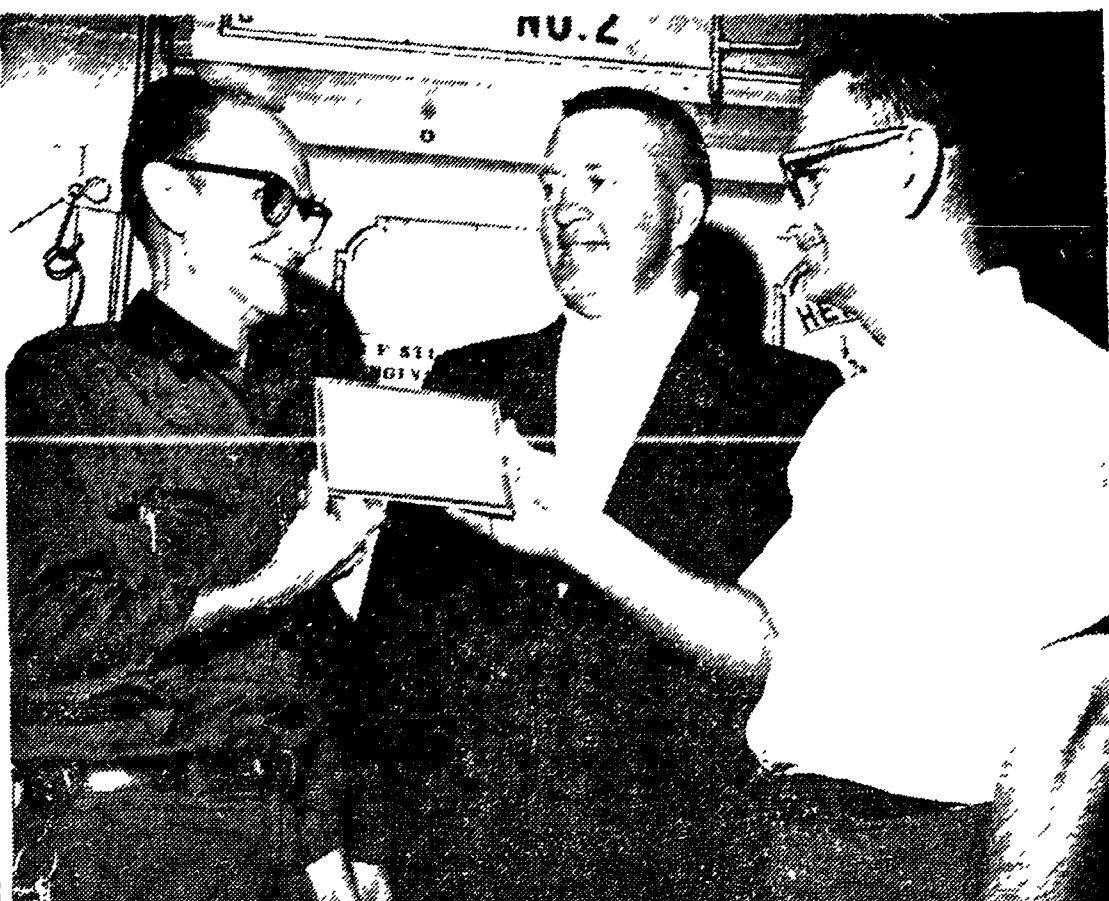

Representative of other labor unions say their groups will continue to honor any picket lines.

Neither side would say what the revised proposal was, but it centered on money.

When the strike started April 8, the union had a request for $1.97 per hour spread out over a three-year period and the association was offering $1.35.

"It's now up to the mediators to call us if there are to be any further meetings," Phalen said. Philip Simon, Green Bay, of the U.S. Conciliation and Medi-

Urgent Need for a Central Facility Stressed by VTE-12

City Finance Director Picked

Expect Appointment Will be Formally Announced Friday

A new finance director for the City of Appleton has been selected, it was learned today. Mayor George Buckley and Personnel Director Jerome Rusch are expected to make a formal announcement on an appointment Friday.

The finance post was vacated recently by Henry Schreve, who went to West Allis to become controller at $15,000 a year.

Buckley said today he conferred with Ald. Alvin E. Tewes (15th), council president and finance committee chairman, on the impending appointment. The man is from the Fox Cities area.

The three top ranking applicants in the written tests conducted recently by the State Bureau of Personnel underwent oral interviews by a local four-man panel, including three certified public accountants.

Rusch indicated the man who rated No. 1 in the written and oral exams is being recommended for the position.

There is a possibility the new finance director will report to work next week.

City officials said they wanted to talk with the top applicant once more before the mayor makes the appointment. Until then, they said, no names would be disclosed.

NEENAH — Burglars forced open a side door at One-Hour Martinizing, 510 N. Commercial St., sometime Wednesday night but apparently left empty handed. The break-in was discovered by a policeman on a routine beat.

Selection of Architect Stepped Up to Speed Building Program

Enrollments and projected enrollments, area needs and new programs have put an added sense of urgency on getting a central vocational facility built and has prompted the narrowing of the field of architects.

This sense of urgency was noticeable at a special Vocational, Technical and Adult Education District 12 (VTE-12) board meeting Wednesday after the board had looked at the future needs of the area and decided to narrow the field of architects to three or four in the next few weeks.

Interviews with architects have been going on for about a month and C. G. Russell Johnson, chairman of the board, and a member of the three-man interview committee, informed the board that there were many good firms to choose from.

"In fact, I don't know how we are going to narrow them down to three or four," he said. "Most of them have excellent backgrounds in building schools and institutions."

Speed Plans

Some of the statistics, explained by William Sirek, director, which prompted the board to speed up plans included both curriculum and enrollment projections.

At the present time, 17 associate and 12 vocational degree programs are offered in the various schools. Of these, 10 are in the developmental stages (first year programs which can't be evaluated until the end of the school year).

Sixteen more new programs are planned for 1968-69. Six are associate degree programs and are comprised of fashion merchandising, legal secretary, medical secretary, restaurant cookery, chemical technology and police science technology.

Ten vocational courses include data processing machine operator, business machine operator, retail sales, homemakers' assistant, home furnishing assistant, institutional foods - dietetics, child day care assistant, truck driving, radio and TV servicing and diesel mechanics.

Additional Courses

In 1970-71, an additional 20 courses will be initiated; in 1972-73, a dozen more; in 1974-75, 13 more.

"All of these are going to take rooms and if we had a central facility, we could save a great deal on teaching staff alone because we could combine classes," Sirek said.

Asked how he and the staff determined what courses were needed, Sirek told the board that everything was done through surveys.

Victim Is Knifed After Scuffle While Cleaning Lavatory

Post-Crescent News Service

GREEN BAY — Three Wisconsin State Reformatory inmates were being held in isolation wards today as suspects in the murder of another inmate Wednesday morning.

The suspects, aged 17, 18, and 19, are believed to have had knowledge of the murder of Dennis M. Androsky, 20, Superior, who died of knife wounds suffered in a lavatory at the institution.

Authorities said the primary suspect, who is 17 years old, has refused to give a statement. Instead, he asked for permission to notify his parents in Rockford, Ill., to obtain a lawyer for him.

Androsky, serving a term for the murder of his father in 1964, was beaten and stabbed in the chest with a sharpened kitchen knife, according to police and reformatory officials.

John J. Dixon, manager, and president of Dixon, Inc., today announced that an application for modification and relocation of the WAPL-FM transmitter and tower has been filed with the Federal Communications Commission.

Dixon said the radio station is purchasing a new 10-kilowatt FM transmitter which will be

Fox Cities, State Experiences Freeze

Mercury Drops to 30 Degrees; More Forecast for Tonight

The Fox Cities weren't alone in experiencing spring chills during the past 24 hours. The entire state shivered in freezing temperatures. To make it worse, more of the same is in store for tonight, according to the weatherman.

The Fox Cities had a low of 30 degrees, while the 24-hour high was 40. Wind out of the west-northwest at 11 miles per hour added to the chill. Humidity was 77 per cent and skies were cloudy. Dew point was 29.

A low of 28 is expected tonight but Friday will warm up to 54 degrees. Light and variable winds tonight will become southerly at 6 to 12 m.p.h. There is less than ten per cent probability of rain tonight and Friday.

No Better Elsewhere

Elsewhere in the state, temperatures fell to 27 degrees in Eau Claire, Park Falls and Superior, the overnight low for the state.

But it wasn't much warmer elsewhere. Appleton, Burlington, Wausau and Lone Rock had 30 degrees, Madison and Green Bay 31, Racine and La Crosse 32. Only Milwaukee and Beloit, 34 degrees, remained above the freezing mark.

Superior had five inches of snow on the ground and flurries still falling at 8 a.m. today. Park Falls, where much of Wednesday's snow melted as it fell, had only two inches left this morning.

Green Bay had .15 inch of precipitation in the 24-hour period ending at 6 a.m.

High temperatures Wednesday ranged from 42 degrees at Green Bay to 30 at Park Falls. The nation's high was 96 at Vero Beach, Fla. The overnight low was 17 at Bemidji, Minn.

Police Charge Youth With Using Plates From Stolen Auto

A 17-year-old Appleton youth received three traffic citations Wednesday afternoon when he was stopped near his residence driving a car with license plates belonging to an auto stolen at Green Bay.

Appleton police cited the youth for failure to register his vehicle, improper use of license plates and failure to transfer the title on a vehicle.

The youth, who was driving a 1956 auto, denied knowing anything about the 1963 model car stolen March 4 to which the plates belonged. He said he found the plates.

Police are continuing investigation.

Gein Evidence Ruling Likely in 3 Weeks

BY BILL KNUTSON Post-Crescent Staff Writer

WAUTOMA — Circuit Judge Robert Gollmar of Baraboo is not expected to rule for at least three weeks on a motion by Ed Gein's attorney to suppress physical evidence taken from the Plainfield man's house during what the attorney contends was an illegal search.

Testimony was completed Wednesday afternoon in connection with the motion by Dominic Frinzi who was unsuccessful Tuesday in a bid to have the Wisconsin Supreme Court dismiss murder and robbery charges against Gein on grounds that complaints issued in 1957 were defective because they did not contain sufficient information.

The pre-trial motions hearing, adjourned April 9, continued here today with testimony in connection with another motion by Frinzi — this one asking that all alleged statements, confessions or admissions by Gein be suppressed and not be allowed during the trial.

Submit Briefs

Although Gollmar was expected to rule Wednesday on Frinzi's motion to suppress all physical evidence he said was gained by an illegal search of Gein's home, the judge instead accepted Frinzi's request to submit briefs on the question after the Milwaukee attorney and Robert Sutton, assistant state attorney general, became deadlocked on the search issue.

Frinzi asked that he be al-

Ed Gein Called 'Pitiful' By Head Of State Hospital

Dr. Edward F. Schubert, superintendent of Central State Hospital, Waupun, where Ed Gein was confined for 10 years, testified this morning that Gein in December, 1957, was "a very pitiful individual" and was "susceptible to suggestion."

Dr. Schubert, called to the stand by defense Attorney Dominic Frinzi, said based on several examinations of Gein at the hospital 10 years ago, he determined that the Plainfield man "was a very suggestible individual" who "tended to want to give you answers he felt would make you happy or satisfied."

Dr. Schubert also said that Gein, between Nov. 16 and Nov. 23, 1957, was "very seriously mentally ill." In reply to a question by Frinzi, Dr. Schubert said it appeared the mental illness was present at least 10 years prior to 1957. He characterized Gein's mental illness as being a form of schizophrenia.

lowed to file a brief, explaining "this motion is very, very vital to the defense of this case." He testified contained bills, allegedly supporting his motion within two weeks. Sutton will reply in about a week, then Frinzi would have an opportunity to file a counter-brief, the court said.

Several officials testified Wednesday morning that they had been in Gein's house without a search warrant and without his permission while investigating the Nov. 16, 1957, killing of Mrs. Bernice Worden whose body was found in Gein's woodshed.

Found Body

Several policemen and former lawmen testified they went in his house the night of Nov. 16 seeking Mrs. Worden whom they feared met with foul play, and to look for Gein as a suspect. He was not present when they entered his rural Plainfield house.

Raymond A. Gault, Plainfield funeral director, said he did not have a search warrant when he removed Mrs. Worden's body from the woodshed the morning of Nov. 17. He said the head was missing, but was found later.

Allan E. Wilmovsky, firearms identification specialist from the state crime laboratory, said he did not have a search warrant when he and deputies removed search warrants, removed several items from Gein's property.

Sutton finally stipulated that authorities, not armed with

Mayor in Middle Of Committee Feud

The city's land acquisition committee should not be abolished as requested earlier in the week by three of its members. Mayor George Buckley said today.

He was emphatic the acquisition committee should continue to function as it has in the past and felt a misunderstanding may have developed.

Buckley's statement shed light on a rhabarb which exists between the committee and the city council's commerce-industrial development committee.

Both groups have been claiming the other has engaged in overlapping activities.

The land acquisition committee consists of Buckley, City Atty David Geenen, City Planner Walter Rasmussen, Public Works Director Frank Keuler and the finance director.

Sarcastic Tone
In a somewhat sarcastic toned letter to the mayor — Keuler, Rasmussen and Geenen requested the land acquisition committee be abolished and its functions be carried out by the commerce — industrial development committee.

"The common council has adopted an aggressive attitude towards industrial development and there have been indications on the part of the aldermen serving on the commerce and industrial development committee of a willingness to devote time and energy to the problems of acquiring and disposing of public lands," the letter said.

"It is with a sigh of relief the undersigned members of the land acquisition committee welcome this display of interest and respectfully request that the land acquisition committee be abolished and its duties and responsibilities transferred to the commerce-industrial development committee," it added.

The letter was reportedly drafted by Rasmussen.

Committee Members
Members of the commerce-industrial committee, which the council will be considering to make a standing committee with its chairman also serving on the board of public works, are: Chairman Ralph Gertsch (19th), Walter Kalata (2nd), Robert Roemer (8th), John Steidl (18th) and Al Stoegebauer (4th).

"I sincerely would like to see the land acquisition committee continue to function just as it has been," Buckley said "It has been doing an outstanding job."

Buckley disclosed he recently wrote Keuler and suggested he become the committee chairman in his capacity as public works director.

Under the present setup, the mayor is land acquisition committee chairman. However, Buckley said he would continue to serve on the committee.

But Keuler apparently does not want the chairmanship and has not answered the mayor's communication.

Opinions Needed
Buckley said whenever land acquisition is concerned, the technical services and opinions of the city attorney, public works director and planner are required.

"I think something can be worked out through a meeting of both committees to arrive at some understanding," Buckley declared.

Rasmussen said he felt as long as the council was willing to give the commerce-industrial committee full stature as a standing committee to devote fulltime to land negotiations, he saw no reason for continuing the land acquisition committee.

"If the other committee takes over it would lighten my workload," Rasmussen commented. However, Rasmussen said he would be available to lend technical assistance.

"I don't see why services should be duplicated and apparently that is what's happening here," Geenen said.

Being Used
Geenen also commented that members of the land acquisition committee were, as he put it, "tired of being used."

But Geenen indicated that if arrangements could be worked out to avoid duplication of effort and time between the two committees it would be satisfactory to him.

Apparently the commerce-industrial development committee has, or is planning, to become involved in land negotiations. The committee does not have that jurisdiction — the latter, having been delegated to the land acquisition committee by the city council.

Keuler said his department is involved in many projects relating to land acquisition but felt

A New Program at the Appleton Family Heritage Home, involving youths from Kimberly Junior High School, was begun in a grand style Wednesday as more than 40 attended the first visitation program.

Director Sought for NM Alcohol Service

NEENAH-MENASHA — Alcoholism Services of Neenah-Menasha (ASN) will begin interviewing applicants for a director of the new agency being formed to give a variety of services to individuals and the community in alcoholism information and referral.

An information and referral center will get its program underway as soon as the right person is hired and the necessary funds available to provide the services needed.

The center will be operating in the health care field. It was designated as the first step by ASN following a confidential survey last year.

he should not be chairman of the land acquisition committee. "I believe it should be the mayor's responsibility," Keuler said.

He, too, felt there may be overlapping of activities caused by the commerce-industrial development committee.

"It is my understanding the committee is to seek potential industries and businesses," Keuler said, "And the land acquisition committee handles all matters on selling and buying land for municipal purposes."

All concerned felt the air should be cleared.

For Winnebago State

Plan All Faiths Hospital Chapel

WINNEBAGO — Before this year is ended, Winnebago State Hospital will have its first all-faiths chapel, an independent structure.

State architects have completed the plans for the $277,000 chapel. Funds were made available for its construction in 1966.

The building will contain 5,600 square feet, with a uniquely designed dome to fill the structure with natural light during the daytime hours.

Included will be a small meditation room that will be open 24 hours a day. The congregation will set in a semi-circle around the altar, a departure in sanctuary planning.

Advertisement for bids will be made in late May and contracts will be let in early June. It is planned for completion by mid-December.

The 75-by-75-foot building will be located in the wooded area between the new administration building and Gordon Hall.

Today the 725 patients at the chapel on the third floor of Old state hospital worship in a chapel on the third floor of Old Main, which has served as a place of strength for patients and staff alike for 95 years.

In October, 1961, employees redecorated the old chapel, Bethel Baptist Church, Oshkosh, gives part time assistance to the chaplains.

Masses are said by Father Nelson four days a week and on Sunday Protestants have a special service and communion on Wednesday. All faiths use the chapel on Sunday. Area rabbis also make visits to the hospital.

Chaplain
The spiritual needs of the patients at Winnebago State Hospital are provided by a chaplaincy service staffed by Rev. Dayton VanDeusen and Rev. Louis Winter, full time Protestant ministers, and Rev. Andrew Nelson, Catholic chaplain. Rev. Jack Wendell, of the

Final Neenah Plan Shown

Schellie Concept of Core to be Taken To City Merchants

NEENAH — The final planner's conception of what downtown Neenah should look like is finished. It recommends guidelines for what kind of development should take place in each of main downtown blocks.

A major problem left to be solved by the redevelopment authority is how to interest the right business to build the right building in the right location.

RACON commissioners decided Wednesday to take the finished product of consultant planner Kenneth Schellie to the retail community during the next month to air the rejuvenation program.

The plan, with or without alterations, is expected to be approved by RACON at its May 22 meeting. If the council goes along with the plan and the project area limits, building permits will be frozen in the downtown core for six months.

This means that only projects which meet the score of the plan would be allowed in the central business district.

The general guidelines which Schellie proposed to gain the maximum benefit from shopper interchange in the downtown section include the following retail establishments:

—South side of Wisconsin Avenue, between Church and Commercial: department store, shoe store, camera-gift shop, men's clothing, household appliances, bank and utility building.

—North side of Wisconsin Avenue between Church and Commercial: variety store, hardware-sporting goods, family clothing store, women's clothing, men's shop, shoe store, children's clothing, and two jewelry stores.

—North side of Wisconsin Avenue, between Commercial and Walnut: two catalog shops, gift shop, book shop, sewing machine shop, toy shop, yarn shop, hardware store, paint store, savings and loan association and theater.

—South side of Wisconsin Avenue between Commercial and Walnut: wig shop, restaurant and a restaurant with the hotel structure, drug store beauty shop and a beauty shop in the hotel, barber shop, candy shop, food store, liquor store, dry cleaning, shoe repair shop, bakery, laundromat and the proposed hotel and bank complex.

Fulbright Scholarships Awarded to 2 Co-eds

Two Lawrence University seniors, Sally Hickerson of Iowa City, Ia., and Sandra Reising, Granada Hills, Calif., have won Fulbright scholarships to study in Europe next year.

Miss Hickerson, a French major, will study literature at the University of Strasbourg, while Miss Reising will study international politics at the College of Europe in Bruges, Belgium.

The new appointees bring Lawrence's total list of winners to 45 since the inception of the program in the late 1940s. A Fulbright scholar in the class of 1967, baritone Dale Duesing, has been studying singing in Munich this year and has won an opera contract in Muenster, Germany, for the fall.

Commitment Rate Up At School for Girls

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — Admissions to the state school for delinquent girls have not swelled as rapidly as in the counterpart correctional institutions for delinquent boys, but the female delinquent commitment rate is rising and may soon reach an all-time peak.

The rising population trend at the school near Oregon, a short distance from the state capital, was forecast in the annual report of Supt. Rex Duter to the State Board of Health and Social Services.

Duter warned that if his predictions for a higher population are borne out, there will be problems in efficient management of the institution and its training programs.

The highest total of admissions thus far was in 1965, when 288 young girls were received at the school upon order of the courts. The 1967 admissions rate was about average, at 264.

In other highlights of his report, Duter said:

The number of girls discharged but returned to the institution declined slightly last year, but they accounted for 42 per cent of the total population of the school.

The average daily population for the year rose to 209, partly as a result of a slightly longer average stay, of 59 months compared with 51 months during the previous year.

Negro girls accounted for about 28 per cent of new admissions, which showed no change from the previous year.

The average age of the girls is 15.2 per cent, and the proportion of girls 16 years of age and older, although representing nearly 53 per cent of the total, appears to be in decline.

Duter said the meaning of the figures is not yet clear, but they may show the effectiveness of the increasing numbers of community-centered anti-drop out and work training programs aimed at the 16 year and older youth of the state and especially in larger cities.

Grand Chute Utility District Plans Growth

Expansion to be in County Area; Bid Openings on May 21

Expansion of the Butte des Morts Utility District in the Town of Grand Chute came one step nearer Tuesday when board members approved moving into three new areas.

Extensions will run into the county plat — the old Outagamie County farm area — giving service to Fox River Tractor Co. and possibly the extension of Elberg Avenue along the way.

The district board, working with Donahue and Associates, Sheboygan, the town's consulting engineers approved advertising for bids May 2 and opening them May 21 with a 30-day period for making any alterations before awarding the contract.

A public hearing will be scheduled shortly after the bids are opened so property owners will have sufficient time to learn the approximate front footage cost.

Utility Rate Hike Okayed

Request Approved So Hortonville Can Meet Obligations

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — Because it is having financial problems and is unable to meet its obligations, the Village of Hortonville has been authorized by the Wisconsin Public Service Commission to increase its sewer and water rates and to establish standby charges.

The water utility rates will produce additional annual revenues of approximately $2,500 of which about $2,000 will be from general service customers and the balance from public fire protection service.

The commission said that a 55 per cent annual return on the village water utility rate base of $110,000 is reasonable.

New sewage rates will produce additional revenues of $5,600 a year, or a rate of return of 33 per cent on a rate base of about $138,000.

State to Collect Margarine Tax On 'Butterine'

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — The state department of taxation will begin collection of the 5 1/4 cents margarine tax on the low butterfat spread authorized by the 1967 legislature as a competitor spread for margarine, officials said Wednesday.

The attorney general's office has ruled that "butterine" and similar new products made with 40 per cent butterfat and about 40 per cent vegetable oil, are oleo-margarine by legal definition and thus subject to the state excise tax on the product.

All of such products on hand for sale on or after May 1 should bear the state tax stamp, the Wisconsin Food and Tobacco Institute has notified food distributors.

Appleton Stolen Car in Hit-Run Crash Tuesday

An auto stolen at Appleton Tuesday afternoon reportedly was involved in a hit-and-run accident at U S 10 and State 76 a short time before the owner reported it missing.

Appleton police received a call from Ted Vonck, 519 W. Spring St., Appleton, at 4:20 p.m. that his auto was stolen from behind the post office shortly before 4 p.m. The license number is 148-805, he told police.

As he was calling police, Outagamie County authorities received a call on the hit and run accident. Harold C. Strej, route 2, Shiocton, reported a 1959 Chevrolet station wagon hit the rear of his car at the intersection just west of Appleton. Strej was stopped on U. S. 10.

Strej said the missing station wagon is probably damaged in the left front portion.

Police reported about $100 or more damage to the Strej auto. He was not injured in the mishap.

Three-Day Conference on Retardation Set in Green Bay

An appraisal of gains and goals for the mentally retarded in Wisconsin will be the overall theme and objective for the 18th annual state conference on the retarded, May 3-5 in Green Bay.

Key addresses will be given by Gov. Warren P. Knowles, Fred W. McDonald, director of the Joseph P. Kennedy Jr. Foundation, Wilbur J. Schmidt, secretary of the Wisconsin Department of Health and Social Services.

Fourteen concurrent sessions have been set Saturday, touching on all major facets of mental retardation.

In addition to the governor's address Friday, tours of Green Bay and Brown County community facilities for the retarded, including the new county community service center, will be set.

Highlighting Sunday's event will be a town meeting on residential care and governmental affairs as they relate to the retarded. An address by John Harmon, Chicago, Department of Health, Education and Welfare's regional consultant on mental retardation, will wrap up the three-day event.

Further information is available from either the Wisconsin Association for Retarded Children, 1 S. Webster St., Madison, or the Brown County Community Service Center, Box 2217, Green Bay.

State's Park, Camping Fees Under Attack

Higher Than Most Of Country, Claim Conservation Men

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Fees charged for admission to the state parks of Wisconsin and for camping within them have probably reached a practical limit and are now higher than those of most of the states of the country, the State Conservation Division told a legislative inter-im committee Wednesday.

The fee charges already are paying a disproportionate share of the funds needed for operation of the parks, said A. E. Ehly, a division fiscal officer, who said that the conservation administration stands firm in its support of an expanded general revenue program for outdoors resources enlargement as urged by a gubernatorial task force a year ago.

Lower Charges

Ehly said that with the park fee boosts recently authorized, such income will amount to about 57 per cent of the total money budgeted for parks. Some competing states interested in tourist development have lower charges, he pointed out.

Two adjacent states, Illinois and Iowa, do not charge for park admission, and have a lower campground use fee schedule than has Wisconsin, the official explained.

(The Wisconsin daily admission sticker fee for residents and non-residents is now one

'Sex Behavior' Lecture Tonight

Edwin Olson, Lawrence University psychology professor, will discuss "Sex Behavior" in a lecture to Outagamie County foster parents at 8 p.m. today at the Integrity Mutual Building, 526 W. Wisconsin Ave.

Dr. Olson will present norms of sex behavior for the different stages of childhood, and discuss some reactions to sexual deviations experienced or observed by children. There will be a discussion period following the presentation.

Foster parents for all the public and private agencies in Outagamie County have been invited to attend.

dollar and the annual sticker costs $3, as a result of 1967 legislation. The State Conservation Commission recently raised the campground fee from $2.00 to $2.50, effective for the new season.)

Ehly said the $2.50 camping fee is at least equal to the highest fee charged among all the other states in the country.

Expansion in Number

The legislative committee learned that the 1961 ORAP program has enabled a substantial expansion in the size and number of state parks. There were 34 when that law was passed, providing more money for outdoors recreation facilities. There are now 48, although eight of them have not yet been developed and opened for public use.

The parks program is now budgeted at about $7,000,000 per biennium.

Park use had been steadily and heavily growing, although a combination of circumstances, including a rainy and cold camping season in 1967, brought a slight decline in attendance from the previous year. The problem of dead alewives on the shores of Lake Michigan also affected attendance, but park officials counted 5,318,000 park visitors and about 600,000 camper days.

$341 in Coins Stolen From Rural Dwelling

Three men in a small white car bearing Illinois license plates are being sought in connection with the theft of $341 in coins from a rural Appleton home Wednesday afternoon.

Henry R. Woyak, route 4, reported the theft to Calumet County sheriff Irvan Vice about 9 p.m., shortly after he discovered the coins were missing.

Woyak told police he blocked a car in his driveway when he returned home from work about 3 p.m. The occupants told him they had stopped to inquire if he had German police dog puppies for sale. He told authorities he dismissed the inquiry until he discovered the coins, in rolls, were missing.

No sign of a forced entry was found by Calumet investigators, Vice said. Nothing in the house was disturbed.

The new director of financial aids effective July 1, is Gerald Olson, a Madison native. Olson majored in physical education at Wisconsin State University-LaCrosse and served temporarily as athletic director at UWGB after graduation in 1962. After a year of teaching in the Mineral Point public schools, Olson returned to Madison to complete studies toward a master's degree in guidance and counseling at the University of Wisconsin.

Grand Chute Police Confiscate Rifles of Appleton Teen-Agers

Grand Chute police this week took away the .22 caliber rifles of three Appleton teen-agers involved in shooting at other youths April 15.

Police, who said the action was taken following a conference with the boys, their parents, and the youths who allege they were shot at, explained that the young offenders will get their rifles back in six months.

The shooting incident occurred near the Grand Chute town dump. Police said that a bullet went through a sweater that hung on the handlebars of one youth's bicycle.

The town board is scheduled to consider a rifle shooting ban for the town at an upcoming meeting.

Youths Admit Charges in Hunting Lodge Fire, Theft

Four youths from the Hortonville and New London area pleaded guilty in Outagamie County Court Branch 2 Wednesday to charges of criminal damage, theft and a burglary stemming from the burning of a hunting lodge near Hortonville last month.

They are Peter Carmody, 18, route 2, Hortonville; Eugene Fink, 19, route 1, New London; John Jolly, 18, 1323 Division St., New London, and Robert Muskevitch, 19, 324 E. Quincy St., New London.

Consolidation of charges from Waupaca County is expected against at least one of the youths. Last week in Waupaca Municipal Justice Court, the four were placed on probation for one year on charges ranging from criminal damage to theft.

Outagamie authorities charged that the four broke into the Mosquito Valley Shooting Preserve and Game Farm hunting lodge March 27. The lodge, owned by Appleton Wire Works Inc., was destroyed by fire early the same morning.

They also were charged with theft of 20 gallons of gasoline from the Kramer Construction Co., Plain, Wis., on the same day. The fuel was taken from a construction site on Outagamie County Trunk M, near Hortonville.

The criminal damage charges stemmed from the breaking of display windows at four Kaukauna business places April 4.

Cyclists Fined For Taking Bikes to Bar

CHILTON — Nearly turning a rural New Holstein tavern into a drive-in resulted in $50 fines this week for two Sheboygan men.

Fined by Calumet County Judge D. H. Sebor were Edward Wolfert, 29, and Allan Ruppel, 23. They pleaded no contest to disorderly conduct charges.

According to the complaint signed by tavern operator Robert J. Werde, the two cyclists used profane language and broke glasses while in the bar on March 31. When they were about to leave, they backed their motorcycles into the open door and raced the engines filling the bar with exhaust fumes.

Three Held in Stabbing Death At Reformatory

inmates had been assigned to cleaning the reformatory rotunda and the first floor halls and lavatories. Androsky was cleaning a lavatory when one of the inmates allegedly entered the room and stabbed him.

Cuts and Bruises
Sheriff Norbert Froelich said the two inmates apparently scuffled because Androsky had several cuts and bruises about his face.

A reformatory guard said he saw an inmate run from the lavatory and downstairs to a basement. Seconds later Androsky staggered from the same room and fell near a door to the institution's library.

A knife was found near Androsky. Guards ordered two inmates, both suspects in the stabbing, to get a stretcher Androsky was carried to the lobby where a nurse gave him mouth to mouth resuscitation until an ambulance arrived.

Androsky was taken to St. Vincent Hospital, where he was dead on arrival. His body was transferred to Bellin Memorial Hospital for an autopsy. Coroner Tim Blaney today said Androsky died of a sharp penetration wound to the head.

Although the primary suspect refused to give a statement, one of the other inmates was questioned this morning by Brown

Woman Faints, Squad Takes Her to Hospital

The Appleton Fire Department rescue squad was called to 1618 Ravina Place this morning when a woman reported that her sister had fainted.

When the rescue squad arrived, Mrs. Anne Spicher reportedly was conscious but still had slight stomach pains. A physician recommended she be taken to St. Elizabeth's Hospital for a checkup.

The rescue squad was called at 8:47 a.m.

County investigators. The second suspect was working in the rotunda area when the stabbing occurred, one guard said. Minutes earlier he had poked his head in the door of the washroom and yelled something to Androsky, the guard told authorities.

Froelich and other officers found a second knife in a home-made sheath in a cardboard box below the stairs leading to the basement from the rotunda. The box was under a coat belonging to the victim, according to police reports.

Lt. Richard Schrickel said stainless steel kitchen knives, filed down, were obtained as evidence. A third knife was found in the trash can in the cell of one of the suspects.

Also obtained as evidence were blood scrapings from the wall in the hallway and from the bathroom floor.

The third inmate being held in an isolation cell today was attending a class when the stabbing occurred, according to Schrickel.

Schrickel and Warden M. A. Skaff said they are reasonably sure who committed the crime, but chose to withhold the information until the investigation is completed.

Plans for a Final Farewell to the old McKinley School, which will be closed this year, are being made by a committee of the PTA. Chairmen of various committees involved are, from left, Robert Mancl, Robert Discher, Mrs. Donald Moder, Mrs. Robert Discher, Principal Clinton Roach, and Arthur Snell. The open house has been set for 7 p.m. May 2. (Post-Crescent Photo) need in our local industries and make sure the students will have jobs when they get out and want to stay here, but on the other hand, we also need to offer courses for those who may want to leave this area and learn a trade they are able to use in other parts of the country," Sirek explained.

This is the problem in vocational education, he added. "We will be involved in constant surveys because the needs in industry are constantly changing."

Enrollment Growth

Turning to enrollments, Sirek said that the surveys and projections indicate that the vocational school can expect an enrollment of about 2,200 by 1985 in full-time day programs. The present enrollment is 937.

By 1968, it is expected to go up to 999; by 1970 to 1,355; by 1972, 1,739; 1978, 2,184; 1982, 2,697 and then drop down to 2,253.

Both Sirek and Nick Bordini, assistant director of research and development, stressed, however, that these figures were conservative and that the increase could be bigger, depending on various circumstances.

"If immigration into the area doesn't slow down, our estimates are low," Bordini said.

These figures, he explained, do not include potential students who decide to enter full-time school several years after leaving high school or dropping out of college, so these, too, could make a difference," the official explained.

"And we certainly can't predict what will happen if and when the war in Vietnam stops. Just think of how many young men will return and seek jobs and a better education," Sirek added.

Shook by Sheriff

Testify Gein Was Pummeled in Cell

WAUTOMA — Ed Gein, when he refused to "come clean" following his arrest for murder 10 years ago, was thrown against his jail cell wall by a former Waushara County sheriff who died last month.

Three former Waushara County deputy sheriffs testified here Wednesday afternoon that Sheriff Arthur Schley came into Gein's jail cell about 2 a.m., Nov. 17 and, after questioning his deputies, grabbed the accused Plainfield man and threw him against the brick wall. Testimony Wednesday failed to reveal if Gein was injured in the attack.

The pummeling came to light when Milwaukee attorney Dominic Frinzi called retired deputy Dan Chase of Wautoma to testify concerning a motion to suppress statements or admissions authorities obtained from Gein.

Chase, who now is Waushara court bailiff, testified that he was with Gein in the jail cell here about 2 a.m. Nov. 17 when Schley came in.

Grabbed Gein
"Schley asked me if he (Gein) had come clean," Chase began. He stated that when Schley was told no information had been obtained in the questioning, he "grabbed Gein and threw him against the... wall in the jail."

Chase, in reply to further questions by Frinzi, said he did not see Gein's head strike the wall; did not see blood on the wall; and did not see Schley attack Gein at any other time while the Plainfield man was in custody.

Arden Spees, former Plainfield village marshal who assisted in the investigation of the alleged murder and robbery of Mrs. Bernice Worden, substantiated Chase's testimony.

He said that Schley, who was a large man, "took hold of Ed by the shoulders. He would have knocked his head against the wall several times if we wouldn't have stopped him." Spees said that he and other deputies restrained Schley.

Against Wall
Spees demonstrated for Frinzi, how Schley allegedly "slammed" Gein against the wall.

Final testimony on the attack came from former deputy Leon Murty of Wild Rose who said that Schley came into the cell and "asked Dan (Chase) if we were getting any place" in questioning Gein.

Schley died in Wautoma March 22 at the age of 43, reportedly of a heart attack. He was Waushara County highway commissioner at the time of his death and was sheriff and undersheriff from 1957 to 1963.

He and Capt. Lloyd Schuep-hoester of the Green Lake County Sheriff's Department found Mrs. Worden's nude, decapitated body hanging in a woodshed at the rear of Gein's home the night of Nov. 16. Schley reportedly was an acquaintance of Mrs. Worden, a widow, and was "shaken" for some time after the bizarre finding.

Schley, during testimony at Gein's preliminary hearing Feb. 21, angered Frinzi when he repeatedly stated that he could recall little about his interrogation of Gein in November 1957.

Although Frinzi, one of Gein's two court-appointed attorneys, called Schley to the stand, he attempted unsuccessfully to have the former sheriff declared a hostile witness.

Final Farewell Arranged for 'Old' McKinley

Plans to give the old McKinley School a final farewell party are being made by a committee of PTA members.

The public, former principals, former teachers, students, parents and former PTA members have all been invited to the grand finale, which will begin at 7 p.m. May 2.

The school will be closed at the end of this school year and pupils will be transferred to the new McKinley School.

Included in the general open-house will be a gallery of old photos and old clippings.

Transportation will be furnished for the elderly or handicapped within Appleton.

Chairmen of the event are Art Snell, general; Mrs. Robert Discher, refreshments; Peg Oliver, hospitality; Grace Marinic, contact; Mrs. Don Moder, photos and clippings; Robert Discher, transportation, and Robert Mancl, publicity.

Anyone who may have old clippings and photos is asked to contact Mrs. Moder. They will be returned after the exhibit.

Kimberly Youth Hurt When Car Tire Blows

LITTLE CHUTE — Keith Montanye, 18, 402 N. Main St., Kimberly, was treated and released at Kaukauna Community Hospital following a one-car accident on Madison Street about 1:05 a.m. Wednesday.

According to police, Montanye was driving south on Madison Street when a right front tire blew out, causing him to lose control and veer off the road into a utility pole. Damage to the car was estimated at $300.

Contractors Reject Offer by Bricklayers

ation Service, and Donald Lee, Madison, Wisconsin Employment Relations Commission, have held two unsuccessful meetings with the parties since the strike began.

The spokesman for the masons charged that Phalen and others on the contractors' negotiating committee "apparently have no authority to negotiate a settlement which would indicate they cannot bargain in good faith."

A survey of the Valley area showed construction projects were proceeding where the work of union masons was not required. However, some contractors expressed doubt on how much longer they could "work around" certain phases of construction.

"Things should start to tighten up in about a week or 10 days," a union official observed.

In the meantime, it was claimed many striking masons have gone to other parts of Wisconsin and out-of-state to work at higher rates than they would receive in the Fox Valley.

One union official said he was concerned that the strike might be of long duration because the masons were not feeling financial hardship.

City officials said unless there is a settlement of the strike by May 1, the 1968 seasonal street construction program will not be able to start. In addition, sewer projects requiring masonry work will be hard hit, they indicated.

The masons strike already has left an impact on school and other municipal building projects in the Appleton, Neenah and Menasha areas.

Looking ahead, the contract the Teamsters and union electricians have with the contractors' association expires June 1. Three years ago when agreement could not be reached on a new pact, the Teamsters struck contractors and ready-mix concrete firms. It was a lengthy strike.

withstand winds up to 170 miles per hour, he added.

The FM signal from the new tower, with an effective radiated power of 50,000 watts, will carry about 75 miles from Appleton in all directions, covering an area of 12,500 square miles and serving an estimated population of 751,000.

Presently, the FM transmitter shares facilities with the AM station transmitter in the Town of Menasha west of U. S. 10. That site will be maintained as the AM transmitter facility.

The Appleton FM station went on the air for the first time Dec. 24, 1965, and presently broadcasts 19½ hours a day, signing on at 5 a.m. and signing off at 12:30 a.m. All music broadcast is in stereo.

Charles B. Strauss is the AM-FM chief engineer and has been in charge of modification and relocation plans for the tower and transmitter.

Mrs. Mary Ellen Ducklow, station director, and Robert Boisen, program director, head the FM staff.

Ruling on Evidence Motion Not Expected for 3 Weeks such action is deemed reasonable under the circumstances.

Sutton held that when police entered Gein's woodshed on Nov. 16, 1957, they were seeking Mrs. Worden who they felt had been harmed (police had already found blood in her store). "They could not know she was already dead... that the defendant had already committed his ghastly crime," Sutton said. He argued that it would have been unreasonable, under the circumstances, for lawmen to first have gone to a magistrate for a search warrant.

Sutton further maintained that testimony by policemen showed there never was actually a search of the woodshed in which Mrs. Worden's body was found. He said policemen saw the body in full view when they entered the woodshed.

Exploratory Search

Frinzi, who at one point Wednesday had a "standing objection" to nearly all Sutton's questions to witnesses, contended that even if authorities had "probable cause" to suspect Gein had committed a crime, they had no right to conduct an "exploratory search" of his premises without first obtaining a warrant.

Frinzi further held that authorities had ample opportunity to obtain a search warrant after they arrested Gein the night of Nov. 16 in downtown Plainfield. He said that had Gein been arrested at his home, a search incidental to arrest may have been justified.

Appleton Man Reports Theft of Wheel Covers

An Appleton man reported to Outagamie County police late Wednesday morning that the wheel covers, valued at $45, were stolen from his car Tuesday night while it was parked at the Starlite Bar, route 1, Kaukauna.

William Martin, 232 W. Foster St., told police the wheel covers must have been taken between 10:30 p.m. and midnight.

Busy Gov. Knowles Still Can Find Daily Reading Time

MADISON — Few men in Wisconsin manage such a busy schedule of daily activities as Gov. Warren P. Knowles, but the chief executive of Wisconsin, like other busy men, finds time for regular reading of books, numerous periodicals and newspapers.

There are books at the governor's bed-side table at the executive residence. His refurnished study in a remote corner of the governor's mansion is generously stocked with carefully chosen volumes reflecting his major interests. An inveterate traveller, the Wisconsin governor's attaché case typically contains a book or periodical against the chance that there will be some spare moments in the fast pace of speeches and official ceremonies requiring the presence of the head of the state government.

Over a period of many years, he said in an interview here, he has had a compelling interest in history and biography.

Lincoln is Favorite But he is also fond of periodical literature, and says that his taste in fiction runs the gamut from Anthony Adverse to Doctor Zhivago.

What has been his all-time favorite, among the books that he has read and enjoyed? The reply was quick. "Carl Sandburg's Lincoln."

When the reporter called on the governor, he was engrossed in a new volume of short stories by Robert Traver, the "celebrated Upper Michigan writer who, like the Wisconsin governor, practiced law for many years, and has become one of the most successful writers in the country as he has adapted his experiences in the law court to short stories and novels.

National Library Week is being observed this week in the Fox Cities and throughout Wisconsin. In keeping with the observance, The Post-Crescent's Madison news bureau has prepared a special article dealing with the reading habits of Wisconsin's Gov. Warren Knowles.

Knowles confided that he has been intrigued by the courses of instruction offered in recent years in fast reading — in the hope that he may be able to cover more periodical literature, the official reports that pile on his desk, in huge accumulations, his mail, the newspapers, and the best of the current literary production of the country.

But although he did not say it, his visitor left with the impression that he undoubtedly reads more rapidly than most.

Five Daily Newspapers

His regular reading list includes five Wisconsin daily newspapers, including The Post-Crescent, two national newspapers, three news periodicals, as well as sports magazines on frequent occasions. Since boyhood, the governor has had an avid interest in competitive sports, outdoors recreation and conservation.

The governor's reading habits date from his boyhood in River Falls, where he was a regular patron of the public library and borrowed "everything from The Rover Boys to Horatio Alger, as well as science and more adult fiction."

One of the incidental rewards of being governor of a state is the volume of gift books that reach him. Knowles told his visitor when asked about his book-buying habits. "There are more books presented to me than I will ever have a chance to read while I hold this office. The latest book which I am enjoying is 'Famine 1967,'" he confided.

Who were the persons most influential in shaping his early reading habits and tastes, the governor was asked?

They were his teachers in grade school, junior high school and high school, he said, as he

Youth Enters Innocent Plea to Conduct Charge

Arrested following an alleged disturbance at a Bear Creek restaurant, Roy Burton, 19, route 1, Bear Creek, pleaded innocent of disorderly conduct Tuesday.

Outagamie County Judge Nick F. Schaefer set trial for April 29 and set bond at $40.

Bear Creek Constable David Fletcher alleged that Burton, a college student, caused a disturbance at Al's Lunch the night of April 13.

Lawrence Names Staff Member

Richard N. Boya, an administrative officer at Wayland Academy, Beaver Dam, has been appointed to the development staff at Lawrence University, it has been made known by John Rosebush, director of alumni relations and development.

Boya, a native of Appleton and a Lawrence alumnus, will begin his duties around May 1. Boya graduated from Lawrence in 1952, after being captain of the 1951 championship football team.

He has been president of the Beaver Dam United Fund, a member of the Beaver Dam Chamber of Commerce board of directors, and coach, manager and commissioner of Little League baseball.

Banks Establish Own Rules For Certificates of Deposit

Consultant in Money Management
Dear Miss Feeley

I recently had the misfortune to lose a Certificate of Deposit obtained from a savings bank. I reported the loss to the bank, and received what seems to me confusing information:

1. The certificate is not negotiable.
2. A bond double the amount of the certificate is required in order to get my money (Certificate is now due).
3. A bond is required to protect the bank because I might sell the certificate to a third party.

Now, here are my questions: Assuming that I were dishonest, would it really be possible for me to sell a non-negotiable certificate?

Why should the bond be for double the amount? Under what circumstances could the bonding company collect the full amount of the bond from me?

E. S., East Coast
Dear E. S.: Banks and savings and loan associations handle Certificates of Deposit in different ways. Some are negotiable, some like yours, non-negotiable require only that an affidavit be prepared and sworn to by the customer. The bank's discretion determines whether an indemnity bond is also required. If the customer is well-known to the bank, the bond may be skipped entirely.

The point is, what's "fair" is a matter the individual institution decides when it sets up its operations. So when you buy a Certificate of Deposit, you must go along with that institution's rulings.

In some cases non-negotiable certificates are transferable, and there have been cases where this has happened. One instance a banker cited concerned a $10,000 "non-negotiable" certificate which was "lost" in a Midwestern state — and showed up 10 years later in somebody else's estate in another part of the country. Under such circumstances, the bonding company might find itself liable for loss that also included accrued interest — or be involved in legal proceedings. That's why a bond equal to double the amount of the CD is often required.

To answer your last question: it would be necessary for your bank to prove they had incurred a loss in the transaction before you would be required to pay the full amount of the bond.

Annual District Meeting Scout Leader Says Society Is Healthy

"Believe it or not, we do have freedom of choice in our country and that's why we have 6 million scouts working for American boys," William E. Hoffmann said Thursday at the Tri-City District annual meeting.

Hoffmann is a professional Scout leader, a former Scout executive who served for 3½ years in Heidelberg, Germany, as head of the transatlantic council Boy Scouts of America which organized to serve the sons of American military and civilian personnel in Europe, England and North Africa.

"We live in critical times," Hoffmann said, "but not in the sick society we hear so much about. We have to have a healthy society in order to cope with all of today's problems and the parasites who try to destroy it."

Americans Not Hated
"It was my experience that we are not nearly hated as much abroad as we are told. It would be more truthful to say that we are extremely envied," he said.

Hoffmann congratulated the Tri-City District on its successful Breakthrough for Youth Program, which is an attempt to build up the membership and adult leadership of the scouting program.

During the past year 300 boys,

St. Norbert College Gets $32,442 Grant

Post-Crescent News Service
St. Norbert College has received a grant for $32,442 as its portion of the funds donated to the Wisconsin Foundation of Independent Colleges during the period April 1, 1967 to March 31, 1968.

The plan includes random checks and a voluntary program where a motorist can get his car inspected in two areas—Sauk, Iowa and Richland counties and the Madison metropolitan area—for a $3 fee.

The spot check program will use 18 inspection teams consisting of one highway patrolman and two civilian inspectors. They will stop cars to check steering, suspension, tires, wheels, brakes, exhaust, fuel and electrical systems—including horns, windshield wipers, power windows, mirrors, speedometers, seat belts, bumpers, fenders, locks and license plates.

Outagamie Board Decides To Go Formal With Agenda

Future Outagamie County Board meetings will be conducted from a formal agenda.

After much soul-searching, the board's Executive Committee Tuesday agreed to go to a formal agenda for its sessions but to also keep the agenda sufficiently flexible to permit consideration of last-minute items.

The board presently mails copies of resolutions and ordinances to supervisors on the Thursday prior to board meetings, but the items are not taken up in any specific order.

The proposal to be tried at the May board session will be to consider items alphabetically by committee. Thus, Agriculture Committee items will be considered first and zoning committee matters last.

A survey of Manitowish, Sheboygan, Brown and Winnebago counties revealed they all operated from formal agendas with some variations from county to county.

In addition to mailing the agendas to supervisors, Fond du Lac County indicated it also mails copies to all town, village and city clerks.

Supv. Joseph DeBruin, Town of Buchanan, suggested Outagamie County do the same since many of the townships are no longer directly represented on the county board. No formal action was taken on that proposal.

Also, to assist supervisors in parliamentary procedure, the executive committee approved the purchase of 100 slide-rule-type Robert's Rules of Order calculators. However, since the calculator will cost 75 cents, each supervisor will have to pay for the device himself.

Oshkosh Man Fined $50 on Reckless Use Of Firearms Charge

A 29-year-old Oshkosh man was fined $50 and costs or 12 days in jail Tuesday on a reduced charge of disorderly conduct when he appeared in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

Richard D. Eiden, 628 Waugoo St., had been charged with reckless conduct in the operation and handling of firearms in connection with a Nov. 23 incident. A similar charge against Art E. Eiden, 26, route 1, Larsen, was dismissed Tuesday.

The conservation charge stemmed from an incident when the defendants' reckless use of the firearms forced several persons, including a conservation warden, to seek cover. A 12 gauge shotgun and 22 caliber pistol were confiscated by authorities after the shooting incident which occurred in the Town of Dale.

New Government Asked in Belgium

BRUSSELS (AP)— King Baudouin Monday asked Leo Collard, chairman of the Socialist Party, to try to form a new government.

A general election three weeks ago gave new evidence of the country's division along language lines. The three big parties—including the Socialists—lost, while small, federalist groups gained.

Collard accepted the king's mission. He has said he wants a coalition with the Christian Democrats, the country's largest party. The last government was a coalition of Christian Democrats and Liberals led by Paul Van Den Boeynants.

Emphysema Shy? Then Don't Smoke

Probably the best way to prevent emphysema, a crippling lung disease, is not to smoke.

This is the recommendation of the National Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association in a pamphlet, "Emphysema, The Facts," made available by it in cooperation with the American Heart Association.

A very high percentage of emphysema patients have been heavy cigarette smokers for years, the pamphlet notes. Frequently—and this is important—they also live in areas where air pollution is serious.

This disease does not develop suddenly, and early detection and treatment can usually help slow the progress of the disease.

Shortness of Breath

The emphysema patient will usually have a history of several very bad colds each winter for a number of years, each accompanied by a heavy cough and often with chronic bronchitis. The cough often persists between colds and becomes chronic.

However, the symptom that usually brings the patient to his doctor is shortness of breath in the morning or evening or both.

Treatment for emphysema patients differs with the individual. It may include antibiotics for an existing bronchial infection or a prescription for relief of breathlessness.

Although not specified in the pamphlet, this is usually achieved by physicians in their offices and in hospitals through a "breathing machine." For emergency use, physicians may prescribe the use of a pocket-size inhalator. Like the breathing machine, it gives fast relief by opening the airways of the lungs to permit easier breathing.

Disease on Increase

year's activities at the business meeting.

A membership drive will be launched in May. Guests and prospective members have been invited to attend the annual meeting. The new fiscal year, which begins in May, will allow

Adds Flourishes To Kitchen Tasks

To separate frozen steaks quickly without tearing them, heat a knife blade under hot water and insert between the steaks.

When you are in a hurry and have to mix cold shortening with an electric mixer, you can cut down on the mixing time by heating the beater blades in hot water for a few minutes first. This also keeps the cold, stiff shortening from clogging the blades.

Pumpkin-pie spice on your shelf? Add a pinch of it to stewed tomatoes when you are heating them.

Lovelier You

For Aging Eyes

A Lovely writes: I look years older than I am, owing to my eyes. Underneath, there are puffs and lines. The above-eye areas are so crepey as to fall in folds and cover the moveable lids. Please give me your opinion about the effectiveness of plastic surgery in a case like mine and what it entails.

The Answer: Cosmetic plastic surgery can improve appearances. In this instance the procedure is known as blepharoplasty. Two operations are involved. One takes care of the upper lids, where an incision is made and a tuck taken in the natural fold of skin between the moveable lid and the eyebrow section. The other incision comes under and close to the lower eyelashes.

A local anesthetic is used and pain is minimal. Each section takes about an hour and a half. Hospitalization for each is usually one day. In 10 days, swelling and discoloration subside.

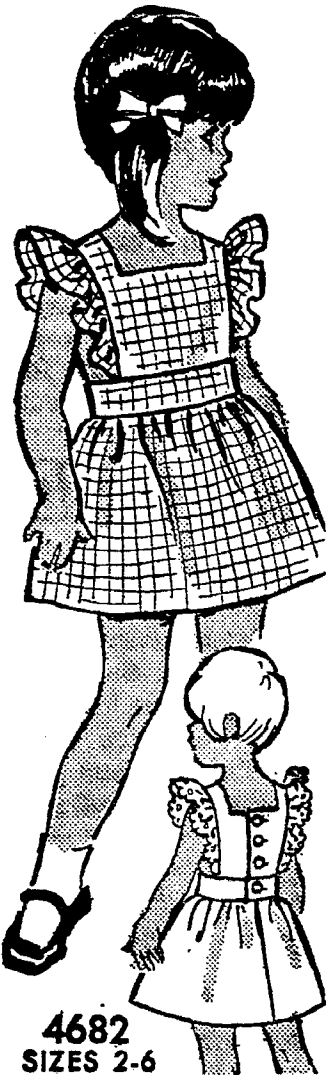

Because all incisions through the skin leave a scar, that aftermath must be expected. A skilled surgeon, however, minimizes scarring. A little makeup, very little, hides whatever there is. Plainly, a successful operation depends on the skill of the surgeon. To locate a topnotch man, consult your family doctor. Only a surgeon can gauge the extent of improvement and how long it will last.

You are not lost to youthful beauty because of dark circles, puffiness, or wrinkles around the eyes. These problems can be brought under control by proper skin care, cosmetic applications, health habits and facial expressions. Methods are detailed in my leaflet, The Eyes of Youth. To obtain your copy, write Mary Sue Miller in care of The Post-Crescent, enclosing 15 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Mortarless Brick Offers Beauty, Utility in Yard

It's true that handling brick without mortar that can cut down on your yard work. Brick makes an excellent edging for planting beds, trees and shrubs. Placed flat on the ground it will hold in mulch and provide a level surface on which to run a lawn mower, thus eliminating the need to hand clip grass around such areas.

For example, almost any man with a little time and patience can build a handsome and practical brick patio or a lovely brick walk. The first job is to level the area to be covered with bricks and excavate at least five or six inches below the surface. Put down a sand bed at least two inches thick, and preferably thicker, and level and tamp the sand. It's usually best to provide a border of some kind: It can be of wood or you can use bricks placed on end or on their sides.

Prepare Sand Bed

With the sand bed prepared, you're ready to place the bricks. Be certain to use a brick that is burned hard to withstand exposure to the weather. There are three major patterns in which the brick can be laid. One is a "running" pattern in which the units are simply lapped. This is the easiest pattern to lay. Then there's the "basketweave," a pattern created by placing two brick units at right angles to two other units. Finally, there's the "herringbone" pattern in which each unit is butted up to a unit placed at right angles. A chisel or a brick "set" can be used to cut or break bricks.

Reduce Yard Work

Once your brick is placed, you can finish the job off by sweeping fine sand into the cracks between the units. The result will be a surface that will resist weathering and traffic and will have a natural beauty that enhances any yard. There are other ways to use

At 80 Dame Edith Evans Is Not Grumbler; Living Is Her Hobby

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Her four score years rest lightly on the blithe spirit of Dame Edith Evans, perhaps the most honored of living English actresses. "Living is my hobby," she said. "I'm 80—so they tell me. I hope you find it difficult to believe. I've had nothing to do with it."
She wore a vivid spring-bright frock. Not for her the accouterments of a grande dame—the tower of silver hair, the lace handkerchief, the silver-nobbed cane. Her hazel eyes sparkle, her short gray curls shake defiantly at times. "I work steadily and hard and I am not conscious of age," she remarked. "I have no particular goals now, except to go on doing creative work. That is always exciting."

"I have no retirement plan. I'll continue to work as long as people want me and I enjoy it."
Dame Edith—she became a commander of the Order of the British Empire in 1946—won six "best actress" awards for her latest film, "The Whisperers," in which she played a lonely old lady on welfare. But Hollywood did not vote her an Oscar, nor did it in 1964, when she was nominated for her work in "Tom Jones."

"I was disappointed momentarily," she acknowledged. "It would have been the cherry on the top. But I never worry about awards. My mind doesn't work that way. If you let something like that bother you, you had best get out of the business."

Milliner's Apprentice
Dame Edith, whose father was a postmaster and whose mother ran a London boarding house next door to a home in which lived a small lad named Noel Coward, worked in girlhood as a milliner's apprentice. Both parents frowned on her acting aspirations.

Their objections collapsed when teen-aged Edith, who had never earned more than $9 a week in the millinery shop, was offered $12.50 on the stage.

"Father, who hadn't understood anything about the theater before, found he did understand $12.50 a week," she said drily.

Through her work in dozens of plays, ranging from Shakespearean tragedies to modern drawing room comedies, she became a famous dame, now regarded by many as the reigning queen of English speaking actresses.

Need Strong Voice
"To be an actress," she said, "you need most of all to be able to act. You need a strong voice, a good physique, the ability to feel emotions, and a passionate desire to communicate."

"Today they don't teach actresses to speak out. You can't hear them."

The worst year of her life was 1935, when she lost both her mother and her husband, George Booth, a petroleum engineer. Childless, she dwells alone now in a flat near Piccadilly Circus, the Times Square of London.

"I'm solitary," she said, "but there is a difference between being solitary and being lonely. I enjoy walking and cooking for myself and friends. I'm beautiful with Brussels sprouts and very good with Yorkshire pudding and roasts."

Her Philosophy
Here is her philosophy: "I never pined for roles I never got. That's why I'm looking so well. There's nothing eating at me. It's very aging to go through life carrying a burden, and thinking you should have done something you didn't."

"I'm a great admirer of living—not grumbling. I think that grumbling brings nasty things into your life. One of the ways not to look your age is not to grumble or overeat or over-drink."
"When I go for a walk, I feel I

Auxiliary Plans Miss Little League Contest

Would you like to be Miss Little League? If you are between the ages of nine and 12, and live within the boundaries of the Appleton Little League, you have been invited to submit an entry to the Little League Auxiliary. It isn't necessary to be a sister of a boy involved in the program to enter the contest.

The winner will be crowned Miss Little League at opening day ceremonies May 25 at Erb Park. She will also appear in the Flag Day parade and be a guest at the annual Little League banquet. The queen will receive a $25 savings bond and a trophy; first runner-up will receive a trophy.

To enter the contest, girls have been asked to submit in their own handwriting an essay of 100 words or less, "Why I would like to be Miss Little League," to include a picture of themselves and to send it to Miss Little League in care of John Hennessy, Northern State Bank. Entries must be postmarked not later than May 5.

The five girls submitting the best essays will be interviewed by the women of the Little League Auxiliary and by Mr. Hennessy.

School Health Volunteers Get Caps in Ceremony

Caps were received by 12 Red Cross School Health Volunteers in ceremonies Sunday at the public Open House at Appleton High School-East. Volunteers Gitter, James Gunderson, Harry have completed 19 hours of training and 10 hours of Knoll, James Leeman, James volunteer work in the schools. The meeting was conducted by Mrs. Robert Van Wyk, Mrs. Thomas Settergren, Ivo Van Asten and Lloyd Powers.

The school health program is operating at Appleton High Schools-East and West, Madison School, Huntley School and St. Joseph Catholic School.

Van Wyk and Mrs. Martin Weber are co-chairman of the Outagamie County Chapter of the American Red Cross. Assistant principal Justin Standford addressed the group and expressed the appreciation of the schools for work of the volunteers. New volunteers were welcomed into the Red Cross organization by Dr. Phillip Dixon, chairman of the Outagamie County Chapter of the American Red Cross.

Capping was done by Mrs. Donald Morrissey, Red Cross field volunteer for service to military families and member of the National Advisory Council. Certificates and pins were

Woman Objects to Postman's Coffee Break With Neighbor

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS. At the moment I am so mad I could chew thumb tacks. Our son is in Vietnam. He writes once, sometimes twice a week. The mail is very important to my husband and me. We live for it. The woman next door is an attractive brunette with a front porch waiting. For the past two weeks the postman has been going into this woman's house for a cup of coffee. I have tapped my toe for as long as 15 minutes waiting for him to come out. Yesterday he was in there for 20 minutes.

Should I telephone the Post Office and report him? (I hate to be a troublemaker.) Or should I knock on the woman's door and ask the postman for my mail? It is not my business how long he sits there. All I want is a letter from my son. — grab the mailman before he goes into the neighbor's house for his cup of coffee.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a boy 16 who thinks you are the grooviest. I need your help and I hope you'll come through.

My problem is acne. At first it was just a few pimples but now my face and neck are covered. My mother says it is part of growing up and I shouldn't let it bother me. She keeps telling me time will take care of it. For over a year I have been self-conscious and miserable. How much longer should it take?

I have tried laying off certain foods but it hasn't helped. I bought medicines I saw advertised and they haven't done me any good. We don't have a lot of money for doctors so please don't suggest treatments.

Should I keep trying the medicines in hopes something will help or should I be patient and hope time will take care of it? Do you know of any cure? —
The New Orleans Mess

Dear New Orleans: There is no sure cure for acne. A treatment that works wonders for one person might prove totally worthless for another.

Go to a doctor. You don't need "a lot of money." You will spend less with a good doctor than if you continue to buy worthless concoctions and treat yourself. Special lamp treatments (in the physician's office of course) have helped thousands of kids just like you. Please make an appointment today.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: In a recent column you attributed to St. Paul the statement: "It is not good for man to be alone."

I have heard of robbing Peter to pay Paul, but you, dear lady, are robbing God. The statement was made by Him in Genesis 2:18.

I don't believe God would resent your faulty attribution but I do feel you should keep the record straight in the interest of accuracy. Your Friendly Pastor J. J. W. of K. A. M.

Dear Friendly Pastor: Thank you for calling this gross error to my attention. I have before me over 100 letters from other readers who caught the mistake. What a joy to know my column is read by keen observers who are obviously better versed in the Bible than I. Thanks to all of you who wrote. I'll take 10 lashes with an old prayer shawl.

When romantic glances turn to warm embraces is it love or chemistry? Send for the booklet "Love or Sex and How to Tell the Difference," by Ann Landers. Enclose a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and 35 cents in coin with your request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Pimiento-flavored cream cheese (prepackaged) makes a quick stuffing for celery to serve as an appetizer or on lettuce as a salad. If you want to combine the cheese mixture yourself, use regular cream cheese, chopped pimiento and green olives.

Fill wine glasses (small ones) with shaved ice; pour creme de menthe over the ice and serve with short straws. Nice as dessert! Cut long straws into short length.

Marinate drained canned asparagus spears in a savory French dressing and serve on lettuce, garnished with pimiento strips, for a company-dinner salad.

Pimiento-stuffed green olives (thinly sliced) make an excellent addition to heated whole-kernel corn (the cooked frozen variety or the canned).

Can Opener Key to Bachelor Meals

NEW YORK (AP) — If canned soups and peanut butter weren't around, many a wary bachelor would be more willing Leap Year material. Although men's magazines feature gourmet recipes and give the impression that single men-about-town are marvelous cooks, the truth is that many top eligibles, if they can cook at all, only bother when there are dinner guests.

An informal survey of some sophisticated single men reveals that when there's no one to feed but themselves, the canned food cupboard and frozen dinner easy answers to hunger pangs.

The foods they store for nights when they are not dining out are surprisingly unexotic. Canned hearty soups, chunky peanut butter, instant mashed potatoes with canned gravy, and good wine are staples with all of them. Each bachelor, however, has his own easy-to-throw together dinner.

Morton Hunt, the tall, genial author of "The World of the Formerly Married," likes soup, a couple of slices of rye bread, sliced tomatoes with bottled dressing, and a marble parfait made of canned vanilla and chocolate pudding swirled together.

"I might really cook something more elaborate," he says, "except I detest washing pots. A giant hamburger is about as much real cooking as I'll do just for myself."

Composer John Kander, who wrote the score of "Cabaret," and next season's musical "Zorba," stores lots of caviar and a whole case of vegetable juice in addition to staples, and canned cat food for the neighbor's wandering feline. But his addiction is peanut butter Dagwoods, built up of plenty of peanut butter, raspberry preserves, mayonnaise, onion, cucumber, leftover steak, bits of chicken. "After that, the kind of bread doesn't matter," he grins. "It's very good. The sort of sandwich you remember all night."

Living on board a boat where the electrical systems might go out and let refrigerated food spoil is a special reason Bob Mackall stocks canned foods which are easily chilled in the ocean. The suave president of a public relations firm lives aboard his 85-foot yacht "Firebird" most of the year and likes baked beans and hot dogs when he's facing the galley himself. Even as someone's dinner guest Mackall's taste runs to simple, hearty food.

"The fancy dishes you can always get in a good restaurant. But try and find yellow cornmeal pancakes with a slice of baked ham anywhere," says Mackall.

The legitimate theater forces actors like Larry Blyden currently starring in "You Know I Can't Hear You When The Water's Running" to eat on the double or after midnight. According to Blyden, "You don't have to knock yourself out to eat decently."

Blyden likes omelettes with toast and coffee, and in his

"I'd Never Marry just to get a cook," say Morton Hunt, author of "The World of the Formerly Married." "There are more important considerations than whether a woman can bake a cake," he says as he heats a can of gravy to flavor his baked potato. At left, Larry Blyden likes canned pudding and keeps several flavors stored in a tiny refrigerator in his dressing room. Blyden is currently starring in the Broadway production, "You Know I Can't Hear You When the Water's Running."

dressing room spoons chocolate pudding straight out of a can. A widower with two young children, he also stocks plenty of sodas, cookies, "and all those doo-dad breakfast cereals kids can't live without."

"Sure I cook for myself, when I can't inveigle a girl friend into pampering me," says comedian Godfrey Cambridge. "Now that I've got an eye-level broiler I'll make hamburgers. Before I was too tired to stoop over." Cambridge's favorite can-opener meal is Polish sausage and sauerkraut. No matter how simple his solitary meal, the big-city bachelor favors a glass of wine along with it, with beer running second and milk almost out of the picture. Cheese, ice cream, cookies, canned puddings and fruit are bedtime snacks for the single man, and instant coffee is the breakfast standby. But what happens when noncooking bachelor marries noncooking career girl? "They get a solid gold electric can opener and take out insurance on it," is the way bachelor-comedian Marty had solved that problem.

should be: "Lead trumps only when you know what you are doing."

East won the first trick with the ace of spades and couldn't think of anything to do. "When in doubt," he muttered, and he finished the quotation by returning the four of hearts.

South finessed with the queen, losing to the king. West returned a trump, but there was no way to stop the ruff. South won the second trump, ruffed a spade in dummy and returned to his hand with the king of clubs to draw the last trump.

South next took the top diamonds, hoping that the queen would fall. He then ruffed a diamond and led a low club, ducking in dummy. East had to play his ace; and South thus limited the club loss to one trick, making his contract.

Only One King
It should have been obvious to East that his partner could have only one king at most. The opening lead indicated that West had four spades, and West was surely short in hearts. If West had two kings, he would have raised to two spades.

In view of this limit on West's strength, East's best chance to defeat the contract was to get a club ruff. At the second trick he should take the ace of clubs, and then he should lead the ten of clubs. If West had the king of clubs East would get his ruff at once.

In the actual hand, declarer would win the second club in dummy and try a trump finesse. West would win with the king of hearts and lead a club, giving East the ruff and defeating the contract.

Daily Question
Partner opens with one heart, and the next player passes. You hold: S-8; H-875; D-A K J 9; C-Q 8 5 2. What do you say?
Answer: Bid two diamonds. You cannot raise hearts energetically since partner may have only a four-card suit. Bid your own suit and await developments.

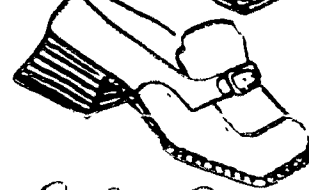

Lawyer Suggests
Juror Schooling

WEST LONG BRANCH, N.J. (AP) — Criminal lawyer F. Lee Bailey said Monday night that states should make it mandatory for prospective jurors to receive pretrial schooling before they are sworn in.

Bailey said the jurors need about two hours of lectures by a trial judge to learn the keys to accuracy, perception, and weighing evidence.

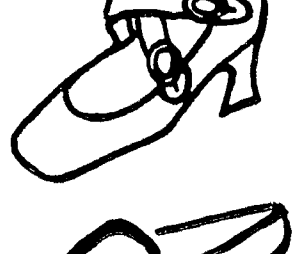

"An American jury is a curious phenomenon," Bailey said. "The juries are run typically by one to three strong persons. If you have the top three, you have the rest."

Lawrence Grad Uses Computer to Prepare Thesis

A Lawrence University alumnus turned in a unique thesis document at the University of Michigan. The 160-page doctorate dissertation was completely printed, revised, edited, footnoted, page numbered and then reprinted by computer.

Tad Pinkerton, 29, a Phi Beta Kappa graduate with the class of 1960 and a native of Waupaca, will receive his PhD degree and teach at the University of Edinburgh. After graduating from Lawrence he worked briefly in the Admissions Office before going on to graduate school in mathematics.

According to an article in a newsletter of the American Council on Education, the computer-prepared dissertation was submitted with the approval of the executive committee of the university's School of Graduate Studies. The subject was "Pro- at the University of Michigan gram Behavior and Control in the Virtual Storage Computer Sys- tems."

Pinkerton prepared his dissertation on an IBM 360 computer and used a program similar to the one IBM uses to print its manuals, the article said.

"We're not downgrading the dissertation," commented Dean Stephen H. Spurr. "It still takes as much intellectual work as it ever did, and perhaps more. But we are willing to modify the archaic fashion of producing it."

Biology May Scare Child Who Is Self-Conscious

BY DR. EVE JONES

DEAR DR. JONES: What could cause our 13-year-old to go from fifth from the top of his science class down to a failing mark, especially when science has always been his favorite subject? He still gets along well in his other classes. But the science teacher says my son is learning nothing in biology. MRS. R.W.

Something connected with his science class is probably scaring him so much he's unable to pay attention and learn. It may be the teacher or one student. But it's more probably just the subject itself. Many children entering puberty feel self-conscious when learning about how the human body works, so a course in biology is hard for them to study.

Use my pamphlet on teen sex to discuss this subject with him. He won't need to be frightened about what he might find out through studying his textbook if you've already taught him what there is to know.

DEAR DR. JONES: Since the arrival of our little girl in September, we've been having a problem with our 9-year-old boy.

We want him to love her but he's overaggressive with her and he goes into her room and wakes her up or picks her up without our permission. We cannot let him hurt her, but we don't know how to handle this. MRS. H. F.

Stop wanting him to love her, and just tell him to wake her or touch her only when you ask him to.

DEAR DR. JONES: At what age is it safe to leave your children alone for an evening? We sometimes leave our 14-year-old boy in charge of our other four children when we go to a party. And our neighbor said we shouldn't put so much authority and responsibility into the hands of someone so young. MRS. J.S.

It's probably never safe to leave your children alone for an instant. But let's be practical. If your son agrees to babysit and he's dependable, there's no reason why you shouldn't trust him. If possible, though, put the young ones to bed before you leave.

DEAR DR. JONES: The other night, I told my family I intend to will my body to science. My 4- and 5-year-old children were greatly upset. And even the two in grade school were horrified by the idea. Have you any suggestions about what I can say to calm them down? MR. J.S.

Tell your pre-schoolers that you're sorry you frightened them by talking about death. Reassure them that you plan to stay with them and take care of them until they're old and gray.

I suspect your older children are just trying to be as melodramatic in expressing their horror as you were in announcing your decision. So with them let the subject down, unless they show in other ways that they're often worried about death.

For a copy of her pamphlet, "To Spank or Not to Spank," send 30 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Eve Jones in care of The Post-Crescent.

We're in Money Crisis No Matter Who Says It

Since William McChesney (per worker) is rising at around 3 per cent. Money is pouring into the Federal Reserve Board, made into consumer hands, swelling worldwide headlines last Friday demands for goods and services. These are the classic conditions of inflation. Costs are pushing up prices: cost-push inflation. Demands are pulling up prices: demand-pull inflation. The cost of living is now climbing at an annual rate of 4 per cent, on top of a rise of 1966-67. We are heading for runaway inflation.

This is the stuff of which a financial crisis is made: huge and growing deficits, dwindling confidence among creditors, the threat of a flight from the dollar and a rush to gold. This is why a normally unemotional central banker made an extraordinarily emotional statement in an extraordinary emotional speech.

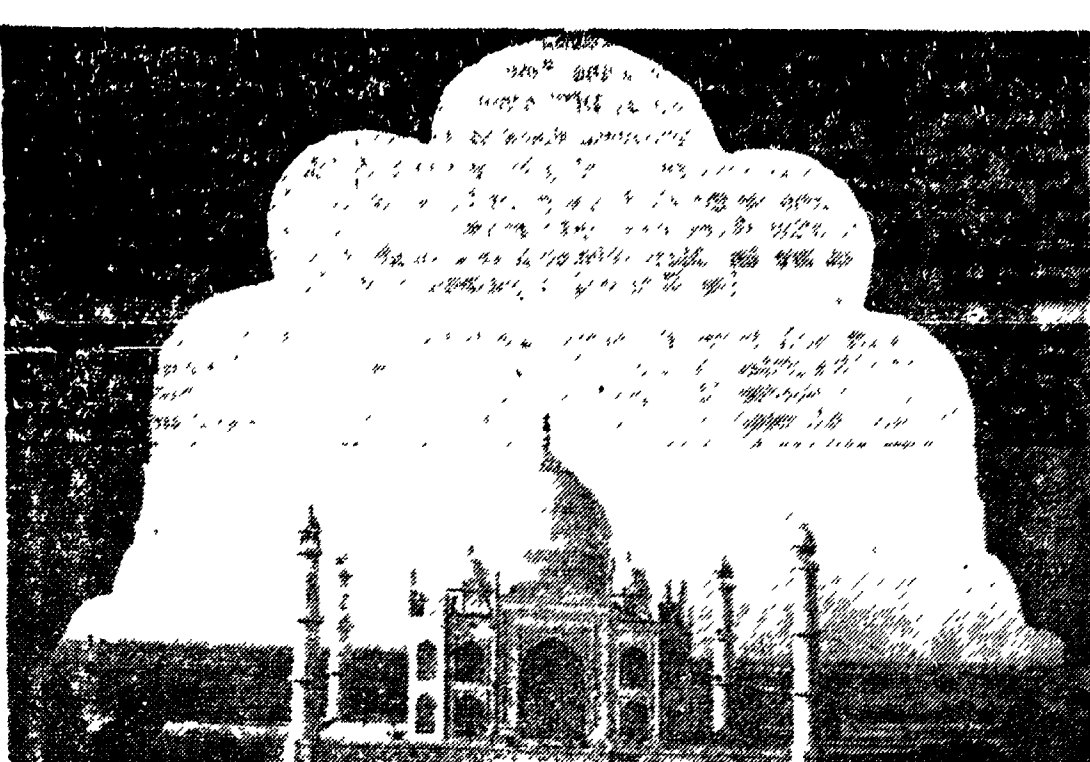

Divorces Granted Two Couples on Charges Of Inhuman Treatment

John M. MacDonald, 43, 2026 Marathon St., Neenah, a former Appleton resident, was divorced Tuesday by Janet MacDonald, 41, 1314 Riverdale Drive, Appleton.

Mrs. MacDonald charged cruel and inhuman treatment in the proceedings heard in Outagamie County Court Branch 1. The couple was married Aug. 26, 1950 and had two children. MacDonald is to pay $104 per week alimony and support. A property settlement was held in abeyance.

Carol DeBruin, 25, Milwaukee, was divorced from Ronald J. DeBruin, 34, 625 1/2 Appleton Road, Menasha, also on grounds of cruel and inhuman treatment.

The DeBruins were married Dec. 1, 1962, and had two children. He is to pay $60 in support every two weeks, and was ordered to pay $1 per year alimony.

India's Spectacular Taj Mahal is in need of repair, archeologists report. The 300-year-old monument has cracks in its foundation and dome and the lean of its minarets is increasing, the experts claim. (AP Wirephoto)

Cracks Endanger Temple

Magnificent Taj Mahal Might Crumble Without Prompt Repair

By JOE MCGOWAN JR.
Associated Press Writer

AGRA, India (AP) — The magnificent Taj Mahal, the peerless monument to love which is India's major tourist attraction, may be sinking ever so slowly into the sacred Jumna River.

Mogul Emperor Shah Jahan's memorial to his second wife is in no immediate danger of crumbling but some experts in the Department of Archeology say prompt remedial action is needed. The Taj first developed cracks in portions of its massive underground foundation several years after its completion, about 1654.

An Englishman, Capt. Joseph Taylor, made repairs in 1810, according to local records. Additional repairs were logged in 1874.

A recent check showed the tilt of the Taj's four minarets has increased, with one leaning nearly nine inches. Cracks in upper reaches of the huge marble dome are reported enlarging as well.

The Indian Express has called for immediate action to check the damage.

"Will the architect of the Taj pay such a high price for selecting the site so near the river?" the newspaper asked. "Posterity will never forgive us if we fail to do our duty in preserving it and passing it down to future generations as it has been passed down to us."

Whatever cracks there may be in the 300-year-old monument, it is still a work of art. Whether viewed at the break of dawn, in the glaring sun of midday or in the sheen of a full moon, the Taj lives up to every expectation of the tourist.

A good portion of the $33.6 million in foreign exchange which India earned from tourists last year must be credited to the Taj.

Special air, rail and bus service is provided from New Delhi to Agra, a distance of 120 miles, and efficient guide service is readily available. Beggars and peddlers are pretty well kept away.

Shah Jahan had the Taj built as a sepulcher for his second—and favorite—wife, Mumtaz Mahal, Exalted of the Palace. She bore 14 of the emperor's children, dying while giving birth to his eighth son, in 1630, while the shah was waging a battle campaign nearby.

The shah invited designs for the monument and finally selected one by Ustad Isa, a Persian.

The emperor brought in skilled craftsmen from France, Italy, Persia and Turkey, and threw 20,000 laborers into the construction. It took about 22 years. One Indian government publication estimates the original cost at $70 million.

Central Mausoleum. A massive base of sandstone was constructed, topped by a marble platform 313 feet square. On it was erected the central mausoleum with an entry archway 90 feet high and a dome 60 feet in diameter.

Slender marble minarets 130 feet tall were built on the platform's four corners, but because of the over-all size of the structure the minarets do not look so tall.

The entire Koran, Moslem holy book, was transcribed on the outer walls of the mausoleum, the script in black marble inlays. The letters get progressively larger in ascending rows, and to a person standing on the ground they all appear to be the same size.

Discount Sought For Wives' Trips To Wounded GIs

HONOLULU (AP) — Wives of wounded servicemen may soon fly to Honolulu from the mainland for $35 less than at present. The Military Bureau of the Air Transport Command has asked the Civil Aeronautics Board for the discount.

The discount is available for family members of servicemen coming here from Vietnam on rest and recuperation leave.

A wounded helicopter pilot at Tripler Army hospital here complained recently that his wife couldn't get a discount because he was wounded seven days before he was due in Honolulu on leave.

The Taj is symmetry to perfection, with one small flaw. While Mumtaz Mahal's tomb is centered beneath the great dome, the son of Shah Jahan cut costs and did not build another mausoleum for his father. He buried him in a tomb on one side of Mumtaz Mahal's.

Indian folklore has it that Mumtaz Mahal, near death, made the emperor promise he would raise over her grave a mausoleum worthy of the love she gave him in their 18 years of married life. That he succeeded, no one would dispute.

essential to understand that this would have been an extraordinary statement from any responsible official and it was doubly extraordinary coming from Martin. Central bankers are traditionally men of reserve who deliver carefully prepared, cautious, heavily qualified speeches, and as our nation's leading central banker under four Presidents, Martin has usually followed the tradition. But Martin made this unqualified statement in an emotional, entirely off-the-cuff, hour-long speech before the American Society of Newspaper Editors, an astounding performance.

His objective was to shock the editors into realizing what is at stake and through them, to shock Congress into raising income taxes and curbing Federal spending. This is why he said it. This is what he meant by "financial crisis."

Domestic Budget

We are in danger of drowning our domestic budget and our balance of payments in a sea of red ink. Our deficits seem to be becoming perpetual and to worsen in boom times as well as in recessions. Without a tax increase, the deficit in the fiscal '69 budget is estimated at $20 billion and probably more. Without major improvement, the deficit in our balance of payments this year is shaping up at $3 billion and probably more.

The direct result of the domestic budget deficit is accelerating inflation. Wages are now rising at a rate of 6-9 per cent while productivity (efficiency) is doing all it can to curb the feverish boom and hold funds in the U.S. through monetary policy. Interest rates are being forced up and up to historic peaks while credit is being steadily tightened. The new rise in the discount rate, basic borrowing rate of the nation, to 5 1/2 per cent means that loans to business and individuals will become brutally tough and expensive to get. The danger is that housing will be sent into a tailspin again and that small businessmen, little people, cities and states will be unfairly hurt. What's more, admits Martin, credit curbs "cannot change a $20 billion deficit which is growing worse." Nevertheless, the Federal Reserve feels it must act.

Need Tax Increase

Urgently needed are a tax increase and restraint on Federal spending to avoid financial disaster. In describing our twin deficits, Martin pulled no punches. He repeatedly called them "intolerable" and "deplorable," declared that unless we correct these deficits during the next several years, we face "either an uncontrollable recession or an uncontrollable inflation."

Increasing the urgency for action is the fact that during

Van Deurzen Tallies 886, Takes Second in Class A

Pin Tourney Standings Shuffled

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

A borrowed bowling ball and a past history of "never doing much in tournaments" caused no problems for Jim Van Deurzen, of Little Chute, as he took over second place in Class A of the sixth annual Bowl-O-Rama at the 41 Bowl Wednesday night.

Van Deurzen cracked a 794 scratch total and carried 92 pins handicap for an 886 count, just three pins behind the leader, Lou Youngwirth of Oshkosh.

The Bowl-O-Rama, sponsored by The Post-Crescent, continues with two shifts of keggers to night. Entries are still being accepted for the tournament.

Fourth Place

In addition to Van Deurzen's top count, Ron Gloe, Green Bay, pounded a 884 total to move into fourth place in Class A.

Top change in men's Class B saw Jim Peerenboom, another Little Chute bowler, crack 847, including handicap, to climb into a tie for sixth place.

Women's Class A action saw Appleton's Verone Wiesler slam 813 to take over the third place spot. Karla Single, also of Appleton, rattled 790 to move into seventh in Class A.

Changes were recorded in the third, fourth, fifth and eighth spots in women's Class B. Pat Schroeder, Neenah, grabbed the third position with a 845 total; Joan K r e u t z m a n, Appleton, smacked 833 for fourth; Inez Liebhauer, Menasha, moved into fifth with a 825 score and Lavonne W e y l a n d, Neenah, socked 799 to push into eighth place.

Won Championship

Van Deurzen, who borrowed a ball from the Little Chute Recreation Lanes, rolled scratch games of 201, 216, 184 and 177 to go with his handicap total of 92 pins. He bowls for Min's Bar team in the Businessmen's League at the Recreation and the team won the loop championship this past season.

Van Deurzen cracked 15 strikes in the four games and was consistent in the spare department through the series. It was the second time he has competed in the Bowl-O-Rama. Gloe had a scratch total of 812 as he moved into the fourth place spot. In other Class A changes, Harold LeFebvre, Fond du Lac, had a 876 total to place sixth and Earl Williamson, Little Chute, recorded 862 to climb into 12th place.

Blew 10th Frames

Peerenboom, who also bowls in Little Chute's Thursday Businessmen's League, had 651 scratch and carried 196 pins handicap for his 847. He has entered the Bowl-O-Rama each year and lamented the fact that Wednesday night he "blew the 10th frame in three of the four games. They weren't splits either," Peerenboom said "just out and out blows."

Mrs. Wiesler took over third in Class A by slamming 685 scratch and carried 128 pins handicap for the 813 mark. Mrs. Single had a 690 scratch, including a 215 line in her fourth game, and an even 100 pins handicap for her seventh place effort. Lucille Boerst, Seymour, Turn to Page 3, Col. 3

Angels' Wright Allows Senators Only 2 Hits

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Steve Hargan was twice as good as Clyde Wright and neither was very good for the batting averages of the Detroit Tigers and Washington Senators.

Hargan hurled a brilliant one-hitter Wednesday night as Cleveland ended Detroit's nine-game winning streak 2-0. A couple of hours later, Wright gave up two hits, pitching California to a 6-1 victory over Washington.

In other American League games, Baltimore ripped Minnesota 7-3 and Oakland tripped New York 4-3 in 11 innings.

Hargan faced only 28 batters, permitting just two walks and Jim Northrup's leadoff single in the third. He struck out seven Tigers, who hadn't lost since opening day. He also scored Cleveland's second run of the game when left fielder Willie Horton and shortstop Ray Oyler collided under his pop fly in the seventh inning and the ball fell for a triple. Leon Wagner's pinch single drove in the run.

Horton was carried off the field on a stretcher and preliminary examination showed he had suffered a concussion. He was taken to Shaker Medical Center for further examinations.

Wright didn't look like he'd survive the first inning against the Senators. He walked the leadoff batter, surrendered a single to Hank Allen and then

Menasha to be Site Of National Divisional LL Tourney Aug. 9-10

MENASHA — Menasha will be the site of a national divisional Little League baseball tournament Aug. 9-10, Don Kuehl, district administrator, announced today.

The tourney will be played on the new boys sports field on Earl Street at Airport Road in the Town of Menasha, with the Menasha North and South Little Leagues as hosts.

Last summer, when Appleton Mc Kinley was the state champion, the divisional was played at Ottumwa, Ia.

Four teams, from areas ranging from Wisconsin, to South Dakota to Oklahoma, will compete here. The winner will advance to the national regional at Southfield, Mich. With that champion moving on to the Little League world series at Williamsport, Pa.

One of the participants will be the Wisconsin state tourney champion although it may not be a Badger state team since clubs from Minnesota and Upper Michigan will take part in the state tourney series.

This year's state test is scheduled at Wausau Aug. 2-3.

Other states which could be represented here include Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, South Dakota and Oklahoma.

Dave Olsen, president of the Menasha South Little League is tourney chairman, assisted by Bob Noll, vice president of the north circuit.

It is scheduled at 7:30 p.m. at Germania Hall and is open to managers, coaches, parents and persons interested in Little League baseball, in addition to the various league officials.

This district takes in 19 leagues ranging from Peshtigo on the north, Sturgeon Bay on the east, Rhinelander on the west and Neenah on the south.

4 Schools Feted By 3 Appleton Kiwanis Groups

BY JOHN L. PAUSTIAN
Post-Crescent Sports Editor

Three and four were the magic numbers Wednesday at a Conway Hotel luncheon meeting. Three Kiwanis Clubs (Downtown Appleton, Northside and Greater Appleton) honored the senior athletes of four Appleton high schools (East, West, Fox Lutheran and Xavier) at the annual recognition banquet.

Coaches and competitors in all the sports were introduced at the "togetherness" fete. A cheerleading corps, comprising girls from all four schools, presented yells for the athletes and for the Kiwanians.

Guest speaker Mark Zelich, sports director of WSAU-TV, Wausau, laced his talk with humor and serious advice to the athletes.

'Luck of Draw'

Two sets of ingredients are necessary for sports success, according to Zelich. The first category was referred to as the "luck of the draw" and one over which the athlete, essentially, has no control. These items include: 1. Being born with physical abilities; 2. Being born into a society where he can compete in athletic programs; 3. Being born into a society, in which the economics (facilities, programs, etc.) are such that he can compete.

Another set of attributes are those over which the athlete definitely has control, Zelich pointed out. They are: hard work, determination and enthusiasm. "These are corny words," according to Zelich, Turn to Page 2, Col. 3

Wisconsin Selects Knight As New Head Cage Coach

Ex-Buckeye Player of Early '60s Will Return to Big 10 Basketball

BY ARTHUR L. SRB
MADISON (AP) — Army Basketball Coach Bob Knight, a member of Ohio State's powerhouse teams of the early 1960s, is returning to the Big Ten as head basketball coach at the University of Wisconsin.

Knight, 27, who coached Ar-

Bob Knight

my to berths in the National Invitational Tournament in each of his three seasons at West Point, will replace John Erickson at the Badger helm.

Selection of the youthful Cadet coach was announced Wednesday only hours after the Wisconsin Board of Regents had chosen him from a group of seven finalists.

Knight was a member of the Jerry Lucas-led Buckeye teams that won Big Ten titles in 1960, 1961 and 1962. The 1960 Buckeyes were National Collegiate Athletic Association champs.

At West Point, Knight's defense-minded Cadets compiled a 51-21 record. His Cadets led the nation in defense last season with a 57.9 point per game average.

Follows Ex-Coach

Knight, who was interviewed by the athletic board Monday night, told newsmen at that time his team's style of play resembled that of his former coach, Ohio State's Fred Taylor.

"You can't argue with Taylor," the former Buckeye player volunteered. "Six championships show it. Taylor's ideas are pretty much a foundation for me."

During Knight's three seasons at Ohio State, the Buckeyes won 72 games and lost 6. In conference play, they were 40-2. One of the conference losses was an 86-67 defeat by Wisconsin's Badgers during the 1961-62 campaign.

Erickson, who has resigned to become general manager of Milwaukee's new National Basketball Association entry, said recently that the victory over Ohio State gave him one of the biggest thrills in his nine years as Badger head coach.

After graduating from Ohio State, Knight served as assistant basketball coach for one year at Cuyahoga Falls (Ohio) High School. He then joined the Army staff as an assistant during the 1963-64 and 1964-65 seasons.

One of Youngest

At 27, Knight is one of the youngest basketball coaches ever signed by Wisconsin in the 70 seasons the Badgers have fielded cage team.

W. E. Meanwell was 27 when signed as Badger basketball coach in 1911. Harold (Bud) Foster was 29 when he took over from Meanwell in 1934.

No salary terms were announced for Knight, who will replace Erickson May 1. Erickson received $15,000 a year.

Knight was chosen from seven finalists, including Erickson's two assistants, John Powless and Dave Brown. Others included Jim Harding of La Salle College of Philadelphia, Jack Hartman of Southern Illinois University, former Detroit Pistons player Earl Lloyd, and Coach Ray Krzyska of the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee.

Erickson said he was "certain Knight will make an excellent coach at Wisconsin."

"He is an outstanding coach and an outstanding young man," Erickson said.

Jim Bunning, Curt Flood Star in Wins

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer
Jim Bunning made it home safely after a cold night in Pittsburgh but Curt Flood was turned away at the gate after a hot time in St. Louis.
Bunning posted his first pitching victory at home as a Pirate Wednesday night, subduing the Los Angeles Dodgers 7-3 in frigid Forbes Field with late-inning relief help from Elroy Face.
Flood, the National League's hottest hitter, drove in five runs with two singles and a triple as the Cardinals slugged the Cincinnati Reds 7-0 but failed to score for the first time in 13 games this year.
Three other scheduled NL games were postponed because of bad weather.
Bunning, obtained by the Pirates in a winter trade with Philadelphia, yielded a three-run homer by Jim Lefebvre in the first inning and then, blanked the Dodgers until the eighth, when he aggravated a pulled groin muscle and left the game.
The victory was Bunning's second of the young season walked the next two hitters, forcing in a run.

But then, with the bases still loaded and none out, he struck out the side and then allowed just two more runners the rest of the way.
Home runs by Roger Repoz and Paul Schaal gave the Angels the lead and then Schaal and Bob Rodgers each singled home two more runs in the late innings to wrap it up.
Baltimore pitcher Jim Hardin unloaded a two-run triple tying the game and then Dave May's double drove him in with the lead run as the Orioles battered Dean Chance and beat the Twins.
But Baltimore needed a lucky bounce to escape a sixth inning jam. The bases were loaded with two out when reliever Eddie Watt uncorked a pitch that sailed over the head of Cesar Tovar the Minnesota batter.
Ted Uhlaender, the runner at third, started jogging home. But the ball took a hard carom off the concrete backstop and bounced right back to catcher Elrod Hendricks, who tagged Uhlaender out, ending the threat.
The Athletics nipped the Yankees in the 11th inning when John Donaldson's two-out single delivered Bert Campaneris.
Oakland had tied the game in the sixth when Sal Bando drew a bases-loaded walk, wiping out a 3-2 Yankee lead built on Mickey Mantle's second home run of the season and Roy White's two-run single.
Campaneris walked opening the 11th and came around on a walk to Reggie Jackson, a stolen base and Donaldson's hit.

MT Triumphs Vike Trackmen Lose In Snow, High Winds

BY DAVE SCOTT
The win string of the Lawrence University track team was halted at two straight as Michigan Tech set back the host Vikings and Lakeland College in a snow storm Wednesday in Whitling field. Tech scored 81 points to Lawrence's 61 and Lakeland's 39.
The snow, gusting winds and temperatures in the low 30's seemed to have little effect on the team from Michigan's upper peninsula. Vikings took eight first places, to five for Michigan Tech, but Tech's superior depth enabled them to pick up enough seconds and thirds to win handily.
Double winners included Lakeland's Siefert in the shot and discus, Lawrence's Wayne Draeger in the mile and two-mile and the Vikings' Ron Messman in the 100 and 220.
Other individual first places were taken by Vikings Andy

"but they tell the story better than any sophisticated terminology."
Hard work is needed in high school, college and pro ranks, Zelich said. Extra effort, during practice and in actual games, pays off, he indicated.
Determination is the element that can turn the tide in any given game or season, the speaker noted. "Determination is not for a quarter or a half but for all the time," Zelich stressed.
Elaborating on enthusiasm, Zelich said, "that's the joy of it, the love of it... the athlete must be able to get a kick out of self-improvement, the improvement of his team and the excellence of the opposition."
"Always strive to keep the quality high in athletics, in your personal life and in the classroom," Zelich advised.
Preceding Zelich to the rostrum were Wayne Berkeley, with the greeting; "Hap" Waltman, with the invocation; song leader Bob Johnson and master of ceremonies Ray Brock.
The Kiwanis program committee consisted of chairman Tom Wright, of the Downtown club; Bob Duszak, of the North-side group; and Clyde Rusk of the Greater Appleton unit.

Blames 'Conditions' Gonzales Ousted in First Open Net Test

By GEOFFREY MILLER
Associated Press Sports Writer
BOURNEMOUTH, England (AP) — The world's first open tennis tournament entered the quarter-final stage today with the barriers between professionals and amateurs fast breaking down.
Six men out of the last eight in the British Hard Courts Championships were pros, but one famous professional—Panchito Gonzales of Los Angeles—was out, humbled by 24-year-old British amateur Mark Cox.
The defeat of Gonzales Wednesday exposed the possible weakness of the pros. They are out of touch with hard courts and they are not used to playing five-set matches.
Gonzales, who is almost 40, said his last five-setter was against Ken Roewall of Australia in Paris in 1963.
Heavy Conditions
"I am not familiar with these heavy conditions," Gonzales said after leaving the red shale court, where his duel with Cox lasted 2 1/4 hours.
"I couldn't get any depth to my shots."
Jack Kramer, former boss of the professional circuit and now an advisor to American promoter George MacCall, said the pros made a big mistake in coming to play on hard courts without any preparation.
Kramer said: "These fellows are used to being on indoor wood floors or on concrete. They flew straight here from exhibition matches on wood in France."
"Anywav, they were never hard-court specialists, even in their amateur days. Most of them turned professional after

Appleton 'Y' Swim Unit Ties For North Central Crown

The quartet of Hilary Ziven, Leslie Swalby, Barbara Pawlowski and Kris Meltz set a record in the 400-yard medley relay in helping the Appleton YMCA open division team to a first-place tie in the Girls North Central Area Swimming and Diving Championships at Davonport, Iowa, last weekend.
The Appleton contingent scored 59 points in the open category to deadlock with Dubuque, Iowa, for the title. The trophy won by the Appleton team was the only one garnered by a Wisconsin entry.
The Appleton 11 and 12-year old division team also fared well, taking third place with 28 points. Dubuque was the winner with 59 points and Madison finished second at 45.
The 400-yard medley team raced to a clocking of five minutes, 11 seconds in setting the record. Misses Swalby, Pawlowski and Ziven also went on

Avery Confirms That South Africa Has Been Banned

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP) — South Africa is officially out of the Olympics and the threat of a multinational boycott of the Games is over.
Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, confirmed Wednesday that enough votes have been received from IOC members to exclude the strictly segregated country from the Mexico City Games this October.
Brundage said 54 of the 71 IOC members had voted on an Executive Board recommendation not to invite South Africa to the Games and that 41 were in favor. Only a simple majority, 36, was needed.
Brundage cited "explosive conditions throughout the world" and "actual danger if a South African team appeared at the Games" as reasons for the Executive Board recommendation, but this was generally viewed as a face-saving device.

Liebzeit, of FVL, Wins State Crown

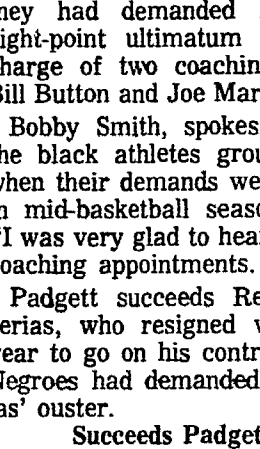

Jack Liebzeit, Appleton, a sophomore at Fox Valley Lutheran High School, took first place in the recent state judo tournament held at St. Francis High School, St. Francis, a Milwaukee suburb.
Liebzeit, competing in the 15-16 year lightweight division, was awarded a purple belt for his first place finish. He is the first in this area ever to win a state title.
In the same division, Jan Mallmann and Mike Huebner, also of FVL, tied for fourth place.
Torre Sidelined For Two Weeks
ATLANTA (AP) — Atlanta Braves catcher Joe Torre was released from a hospital Wednesday but won't be able to play for two weeks.
Torre suffered hairline fractures of the cheekbone and palate when hit by a pitch from Chicago's Chuck Hartenstein last Thursday.
Torre can't work out for a week and won't be able to play for two weeks.

Preps Have Eclipsed State 220-Dash, High Jump Marks
MILWAUKEE (AP) — Terry Maples of New Berlin and Pat Matzdorf of Sheboygan North have bettered records in Wisconsin public high school track and field competition.
Maples' time of 21.3 seconds in the 220-yard dash and Matzdorf's 6-foot-9 1/4 high jump both eclipsed state records, according to Honor Roll listings released Wednesday by Bill Cross, assistant principal at South Milwaukee High School.
Records can only be set in competition at the annual state meets.
But Maples bettered the 220-yard record time of 21.4 seconds while Matzdorf's jump exceeded the record of 6-foot-7 inches. No other marks were tied or bettered but Gary Gray of Milwaukee Custer turned in a 9.6 second clocking for the 100-yard dash, only a tenth of a second off the record and Tom Bach of Glendale Nicolet came within a shade of the mile mark with a time of 4:20.5. The record is 4:19.6

Conigliaro's Plans To Become Hurler Are Postponed

BOSTON (AP) — Tony Conigliaro's hopes of a possible baseball comeback as a pitcher are up in the air at the moment.
Conigliaro told newsmen Wednesday that doctors have warned him not to undergo any heavy physical activity at this time because it might detach the retina of his injured left eye. He indicated that this put a question mark on his thoughts of trying to return to baseball as a pitcher.
Tony C. was injured last Aug. 18 when hit high on the cheekbone by a pitch by Jack Hamilton of the California Angels.

Happy at California Appointment of New Cage Coach Hailed By Negro Athletes

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Negro athletes, who threatened to boycott all sports at the University of California, today are praising the elevation of freshman coach Jim Padgett to head basketball coach and appointment of Negro Earl Robinson as his assistant.
But they reserved judgment on the football situation, where they had demanded in their eight-point ultimatum the discharge of two coaching aides, Bill Button and Joe Marvin.
Bobby Smith, spokesman for the black athletes group of 40 when their demands were made in mid-basketball season, said, "I was very glad to hear" of the coaching appointments.
Padgett succeeds Rene Herreras, who resigned with one year to go on his contract. The Negroes had demanded Herreras' ouster.
Succeeds Padgett
Robinson succeeds Padgett, moving to California from Laney College in nearby Oakland. Smith, who said he no longer is the black athletes' spokesman, called the coaching changes "a very positive step." They are an indication of how Chancellor Roger W. Heyns North and San Diego officials will confer with Walter O'Malley of the Los Angeles Dodgers.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Tiny Ruby Chong of Oakland, who weighs only a little over 100 pounds, loomed mightily big Wednesday in the record books of the Woman's International Bowling Congress.
This followed an affidavit of her record three-game series of 794 bowled Friday, April 19, in the 940 Classic League at Golden Gate lane in Richmond, Calif.

Sonic Booms Harming Ancient Cliff Dwellings
CORTEZ, Colo. (AP) — Sonic booms caused by overflying jets are damaging 2,000-year-old Indian cliff dwellings and disrupting the tranquility of Mesa Verde National Park in southwestern Colorado, Meredith said.

Guillet, park superintendent, said Wednesday. Guillet said nearly 66,000 tons of rock fell Feb. 21 after two supersonic jets passed over and added that two or three thunderclaps a day was common now. Interior Secretary Stewart Udall has appointed a committee to study the problem. Guillet said Wednesday.

Ruroplex Invented To Save U.S. Cities

By GEORGE ROGERS
STEVENS POINT (AP)—
“Ruroplex” isn’t in the dictionary yet because Lee S. Dreyfus just invented it.

Dreyfus, president of Wisconsin State University-Stevens Point, believes the metropolitan complexes where most Americans live are obsolete.

He suggests that “ruropolitan complexes” (ruroplex for short) made up of groups of small cities, offer the advantages of a metropolis in a rural setting.

As a model, he picked Marshfield, Stevens Point, Wausau and Wisconsin Rapids, all fitting in a 45-mile-long oval in central Wisconsin.

The population of the oval is 150,000, and Dreyfus thinks it could go up to 400,000 without fumes and crowding. In about the same area, Detroit has four million people.

Individually, the four communities can’t provide the cultural, educational, medical and economic advantages of a big city, says Dreyfus, but collectively he believes they can.

Medical Facility
Marshfield has the Marshfield Clinic, a major medical facility; Stevens Point has Wisconsin State University, a school with only 1,800 students in 1960, but close to 6,000 now and heading toward 10,000 in the 1970s; Wausau and Wisconsin Rapids are industrial and retail centers.

By concentrating on the strengths of each community, and by making it easier to get around, the people of central Wisconsin can enjoy the best of both worlds, believes the university president.

Dreyfus doesn’t think any local governments need to be eliminated or a new level of government created to make the ruroplex a reality, though he feels this may come about by evolution.

More important, he contends, would be the reduction of telephone toll charges between cities, and the construction of a freeway system linking them.

Complications
With three telephone companies involved, cutting tolls may prove complicated. But Dreyfus believes the idea is as sound in central Wisconsin as in a metropolis, where it costs nothing to phone the other side of town.

The freeways would cost millions, and the Dreyfus plan calls for federal aid. The telephone companies, too, might need a federal subsidy, though Dreyfus believes increased business would in time make up for any cut in tolls.

He estimates $20 million to $25 million in federal funds may be needed for the whole job, and declares this is small compared with the government’s investment in metropolitan areas.

“The squeaking wheel,” he says, “has got all the oil.” He is now working with the University of Wisconsin Extension to obtain a planning grant which could form the basis for federal help.

40 Million People
Four ruroplexes in every state, says Dreyfus, would siphon off 40 million in population growth which would otherwise go to the cities.

Unless metropolitan growth is checked, he believes, there will be an increase in urban problems, including riots, “which are costing you economically whether it is in insurance rates or federal taxation.”

Trying to improve the metropolitan complexes isn’t the answer, he says, because that would draw in more poor people, complicating the problem. And he sees little hope for model cities because “they fail to consider the elbow room factor.”

Dreyfus isn’t a small town boy by birth or upbringing. Milwaukee is his home town, and he taught at Wayne State University in Detroit and the University of Wisconsin, Madison, before coming to Stevens Point last fall.

Appleton Schools Plan Exhibition of Children’s Art Work

An exhibition of children’s art work has been scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Thursday at Foster School, May 2 at Jackson School and May 9 at Franklin School.

Each of the programs will be preceded by a brief slide lecture explaining the art program and children’s development through art by Miss Monica Cooney, art instructor in the elementary system of the Appleton Public Schools.

The purpose of the all-school exhibit, according to Miss Cooney, is not to show off the “talented few,” impress parents or show off.

“Because parents see only the end results of their child’s art activities, it is essential they understand the importance of how the child develops through art. This is demonstrated graphically in each of the exhibits,” the teacher explained.

Shiocton Man Reports Theft of Spare Tire

A Shiocton man told Outagamie County police Wednesday that a spare tire was stolen from a van he had leased from the U.S. Post Office.

Norman Knorr reported the spare must have been taken sometime between 6 p.m. Tuesday and 3 a.m. Wednesday.

Though his roots are in the city, Dreyfus thinks small towns are important because they have historically provided the nation with leaders.

He is an energetic salesman or the ruroplex, hitting the speaking circuit hard throughout the area.

Interest in his idea has been considerable, but to say enthusiasm is unanimous would be an exaggeration.

“We are not metropolitan people,” said a member of the audience at a recent public forum on the ruroplex. His point was that small town people would rather do business at home than drive 20 or 30 miles.

Opposed by Doctors
Dreyfus himself acknowledged some opposition from Stevens Point doctors to his idea of making Marshfield the chief medical center of the area.

He quipped, “I’ve had some of my medical friends say that if I really get hit with something I’d better have a fast cab to get over there.”

But Dreyfus believes the interest outweighs the opposition, and that the ruropolitan complex has a chance of becoming real.

Appleton Youth Pleas Guilty to Burglary of Construction Office

A second Appleton youth charged with the April 8, 1967 burglary of construction office at Soldiers Square Park, pleaded guilty in Outagamie County Court Branch Tuesday afternoon.

Judge Nick F. Schaefer ordered a pre-sentence investigation by the State Department of Health and Social Services and set sentencing for May 10 for Charles Rath, 17, 1508 N. Division St. Rath was released to the custody of his parents. He had been waived from Juvenile Court jurisdiction.

High School Music Honor Society Charter Approved

A charter approving the formation of a music honor society has been presented to the Appleton Public High School system by the Modern Music ton, was placed on probation earlier this year after he was found guilty of his part in the burglary of the Standard construction Co. office.

Appleton police said that tools, $10 in change, two cameras, two telephone desk sets and a flashlight were among the items taken from the office.

Masters, the national music honor society.

The charter recently was presented to Robert Penn, director of music for the Appleton Public Schools, with the chapter number 1053.

The chief aims of the society are to foster greater interest in band, orchestral and choral performance and to provide wider opportunities for personal musical expression.

The society also provides a means of appropriately recognizing on the national level, the efforts and achievements of the musical talents of students. It also recognizes the importance of the arts in development of a comprehensive educational program.

According to Penn, only five officers will be selected initially, on the basis of grade point average, who have reached the status of soloist and who have taken an active interest in the activities of the music department. Their names will be sent to the international MMM headquarters in Illinois for final approval.

From then on, the five officers and the teachers will select the other students.

To Your Good Health Diseased Liver Serious; Follow Doctor’s Orders

BY JOSEPH MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Two years ago my husband was taken to the hospital with terrific pains on his right side, just below the chest.

The doctors told him he had miserable. Will she always have to take medication for this stubborn problem? Could there be an obstruction in the bowel area? I am very much concerned. — E. E.

Nothing in your letter indicates an obstruction — and I would think that your doctor would have suggested X-rays if he detected any suspicious sign.

There are many causes of constipation involving diet, bowel habits, fluid intake — and sometimes the psychological anxiety of a person’s believing that he “should” have movements according to some schedule. Actually, individual needs vary considerably. Conforming to a person’s true individual need is much more important than using laxatives to try to force a routine which does not suit the individual naturally. For some of the ins and outs of this common problem, I suggest a reading of my booklet, “The Way to Stop Constipation.” Send 25 cents in coin and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dr. Molner, care of The Post-Crescent.

Dear Dr. Molner: Does the condition of the thyroid govern or contribute to the formation of goiter? — E. C.

Yes. Goiter is an enlargement of the thyroid gland, but there are different causes for this. It is perfectly possible that your husband’s pains are “gas enlargement. Lack of iodine pains” induced by his failing liver. That, however, has really nothing to do with the matter.

You’ve told me enough to indicate that your husband might, if he would go to the doctor immediately and follow instructions, keep his liver going for a few more years.

But if he keeps on pretending that it’s only “gas pains,” his health will go steadily downhill: misery, invalidism, death.

I hope it isn’t already too late. But he must be examined, must follow his diet, and more than anything must stop all alcohol. Drinking is the worst thing he can do.

Dear Dr. Molner: My daughter, 20, has had a constipation problem for the last four or five years. She is relieved only by taking medicines prescribed by her doctor. Other times, she is

Johnson Makes Political Visit

Teasing Non-Candidate

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson, as he makes duty calls around the nation following his dramatic withdrawal from the 1968 election, is proving to be a most tantalizing noncandidate.

Johnson made his first post-announcement political appearance at a Chicago gathering Wednesday night and, for a self-declared "lame duck" managed to sneak suspense into his speech.

The thrust of the chief executive's remarks at a Democratic-sponsored fund-raising dinner was yet another appeal for national unity and a declaration that in the November balloting, perhaps more than ever in the past, "we shall be choosing our future—and the future of our children."

"Despise War"

Then, in an addition to his prepared text, he said:

"There are mothers and fathers in every land—and I am one of those fathers and she (Mrs. Johnson, who accompanied him) is one of those mothers—who despise war as their children despise it.

"I will devote all my days, all my powers and all my energies to winning the peace that is the prayer of every single American family."

teasing additions to his prepared text.

Right at the start, he remarked that his reception had led him to suspect for a fleeting moment that he had leaped ahead in time to another meeting in Chicago—to the Democratic National Convention that will be held there in August.

"But then," he continued, "I remembered who I was—the President and not the vice president."

As he paused, there was a new burst of cheering from partisans who appeared to think Johnson had chosen that moment to endorse a personal choice for the Democratic presidential nomination.

But this was not to be. Johnson added he was "President and not the vice president—or a member of the Senate."

Cheers dissolved into laughter.

Again, as he closed his remarks, Johnson volunteered that he had been prompted to make "a complete reassessment of my personal situation."

His listeners straightened in their hard-backed chairs and newsmen reached for notebooks. But they relaxed when, instead of any dramatic announcement, he merely added that he meant he still felt compelled to honor Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley's longstanding invitation to speak at the city's annual Democratic banquet.

And an oversize presidential seal in full color hung from the theater-type curtain behind the podium from which Johnson spoke.

Johnson, in many of his public utterances since his March 31 announcement that he would not seek nor accept renomination has made real sport of a situation in which—just possibly—he might change his mind.

Doors Closed

The President's closest friends insist, as he does, that he has closed the door on any movement to draft him as the Democratic nominee.

But Johnson's Chicago appearance, much like his visit to Honolulu last week, had enough earmarks of campaign-year politics to suggest the 59-year-old veteran of the political wars is not quite ready to go to pasture yet.

Like, maybe, he'd relish building up enough pre-convention good will to have a major voice in announcing a potential successor.

U. S., Hanoi Envoys Meet In Vientiane

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — North Vietnam replied today to the latest U.S. proposals on the site for preliminary peace talks but the nature of the reply was not disclosed.

U.S. Ambassador William H. Sullivan was called to the North Vietnamese Embassy here to receive a formal note from the Hanoi Government.

There were widespread rumors that both sides are approaching a compromise on Paris as the site for talks.

Longest Meeting

It was their longest meeting in a series of contacts following President Johnson's March 31 speech. Sullivan refused all comment on the message from Hanoi.

Sullivan was accompanied by embassy counselor Robert A. Hurwitch who has personally conducted most of the contacts with the North Vietnamese. They began last month with an exchange of a small group of war prisoners held by both sides.

Sullivan and Chan, both with more than three years service in Vientiane, have met and talked frequently at social occasions.

However, they never visited each other's embassy until Sullivan delivered the American proposal on the talk sites April 10 and advised Chan the United States considered Hanoi's proposal of Phnom Penh, Cambodia, as unacceptable.

Boy Admits Arson Making 600 Homeless

NEWARK (AP) — A 13-year-old Negro boy was held today in a youth shelter for his own protection after arson investigators said he admitted setting a fire that left 600 persons homeless in Newark's predominantly Negro Central Ward.

The boy, arrested at his home Wednesday, set the fire with matches and then watched from a rooftop as it quickly spread over a two-block tenement area. Fire Director John Caufield said.

Caufield said the boy, who was charged with juvenile delinquency, was "held for his own protection because of feelings in the community" after the weekend fire. It was also feared the boy might set another blaze.

The boy, Caufield said, is not presently attending school and lives near the scene of the fire, which raged over two square blocks.

The fire destroyed 36 buildings, damaged 31 others and caused an insured loss of $750,000, the American Insurance Association reported.

Mexico Holds, Frees Suspect In King Killing

Police Claimed Man Resembled Hunted Fugitive

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexican authorities questioned today a U.S. citizen they said resembles the man wanted on a charge of slaying of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., then released him without pressing any charges.

Daniel David Kennedy of Baltimore, who said he was on a walking tour of the State of Sonora, denied any connection with King's death. An FBI agent, identified only as Mr. Smith, said there was no resemblance between Kennedy and the suspect, James Earl Ray, according to police in the city of Hermosillo.

'No Connection'

Lt. Roberto Fletcher of the judicial police in Caborca, Sonora, had taken Kennedy into custody from a Caborca hotel.

In Baltimore, Kennedy's mother, Pearl E. Kennedy, said, "There is just no connection. He doesn't even look like him (Ray)."

"It was impossible for him to do it," said Mrs. Kennedy. "He wouldn't even kill a fly, let alone kill a human being."

Mrs. Kennedy said her 41-year-old son left Baltimore March 24 to go to Mexico—"he wanted to take off, that's all"—and that he telephoned her from there on Sunday.

Fletcher said he picked the man up about 6 p.m. Wednesday in a cafe in Caborca, which is about 80 miles southwest of Nogales, Ariz. The officer said he took the man in because of his similarity to published photographs of Ray.

Fletcher said the man crossed the border at Nogales on April 7 and told him he had walked to Caborca.

Norway King Olav Welcomed by LBJ

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson welcomed King Olav of Norway to the White House today and pledged continued U.S. interest in European affairs.

Johnson repeatedly noted U.S. efforts during the years of the Marshall Plan and the Truman Doctrine to assist European reconstruction after World War II. And he said, while "there is no doubt that Europe is once again very vital and prosperous," there should be no doubt the United States stands as close to Europe as it did in postwar years.

The President, Mrs. Johnson and representatives of the diplomatic corps met the 64-year-old monarch on the White House lawn as he arrived for a two-day state visit by helicopter from Williamsburg, Va.

Johnson noted the more than three million Americans of Norwegian descent in the United States and said, "There almost no doubt that Europe is once again very vital and prosperous in your country, your majesty."

This is Olav's first trip to the United States since he became king in 1957.

Red Bombers' Future Disputed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Air Force and civilian analysts differ sharply in a Pentagon intelligence dispute already casting a shadow over U.S. plans to defend against Soviet bombers of the 1970s.

Basically at issue is the soundness of a national-level assessment that the Soviet will not develop a supersonic strategic bomber with far-reaching missiles during the next six years.

Gen. John P. McConnell, Air Force chief of staff, thinks they will and argues the United States should build some new 2,000 mile-per-hour interceptors able to shoot them down.

Civilian Planners

Instead, McNamara went along with his civilian planners who figured $1 billion could be saved if the Air Force put a new missile system in an existing fighter, the F106, part of the present air defense network.

Although this plane was developed in the 1950s, cost-effectiveness studies showed that a souped-up version known as the F106X would be just as good as the Mach 3 F12, if a few hundred miles an hour slower.

McNamara also based his thinking on the National Intelligence Estimate (NIE) of what the Soviets might be expected to do in the area of strategic bombers between now and 1976, the period in question.

This projection, drawn up about last October, was that the Soviet Union would stick generally with the strategic bomber force it already has. This includes 155 bombers capable of reaching the United States without refueling.

McConnell, testifying before

the Senate Armed Services Committee in February, said, "I don't agree with" and "I don't subscribe to" the NIE view.

The four-star general said he felt the Soviets would indeed put into operation a new supersonic bomber capable of "delivering an extremely long-range, high-speed air-to-ground missile" against the United States by 1976.

The F106X would be inadequate to deal with this threat, McConnell declared.

108 Human Years

Old Cavalry Horse Just Fading Away

FT. RILEY, Kan. (AP) — Old Chief's days of luxury are stretching on and on at Ft. Riley.

Illnesses may slow down the 36-year-old last surviving Army cavalry horse but so far he's weathered them.

Last week Chief had an attack of colic and went through what his handler termed "a pretty rough time."

But, says Spec. 5 Ronald Haley, 26, who has taken care of chief for 5½ months, "He's doing much better now. He's eating, walking and standing much better. But he sure had me worried last week."

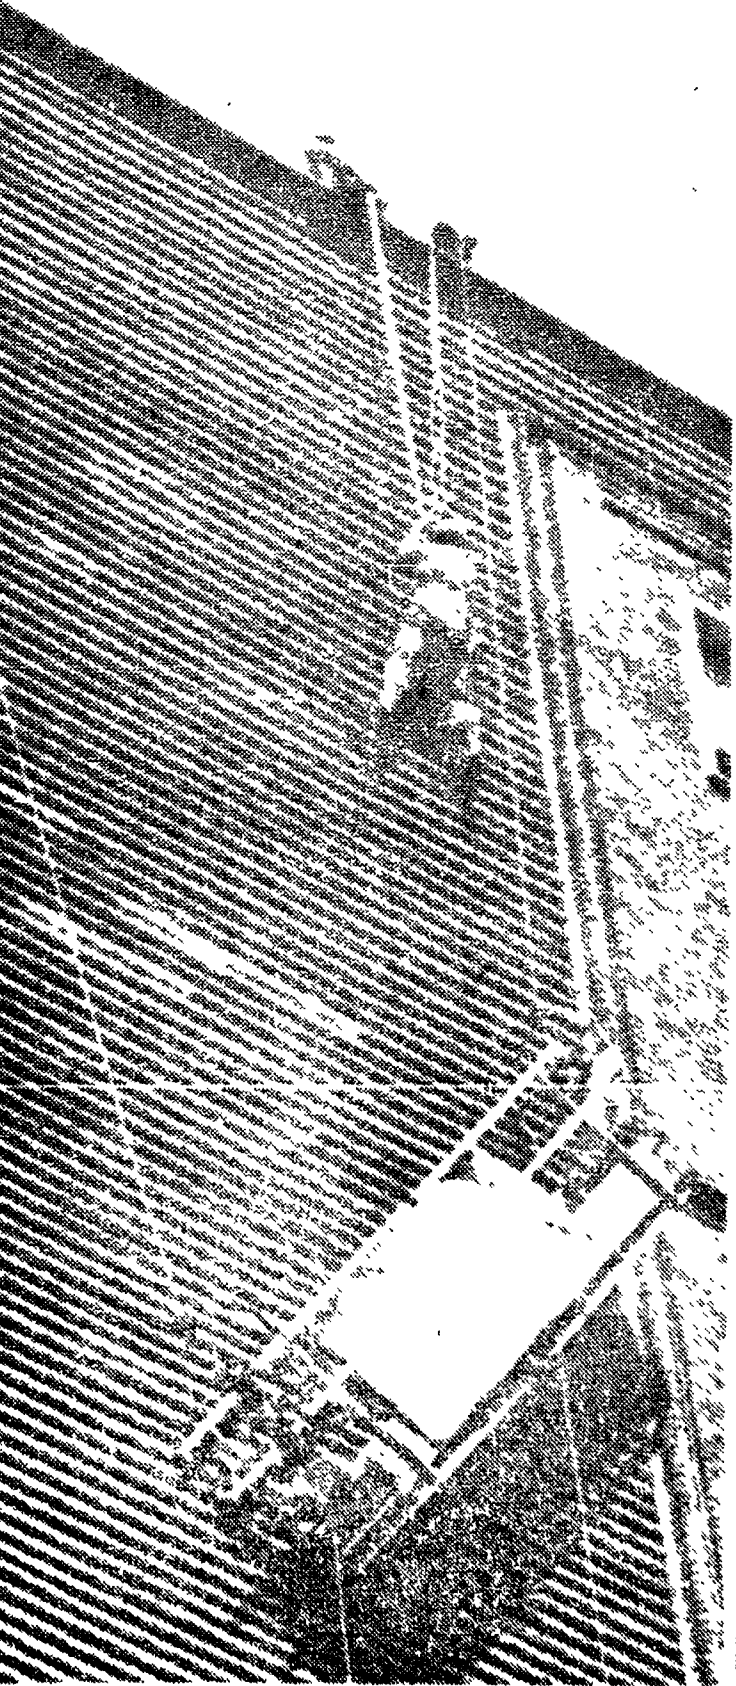

As Haley spoke, the former cavalry mount was out in a pasture doing what he's been doing since 1953—taking it easy.

Haley said Chief is alert and has a good appetite for a horse his age, which veterinarians say is equal to 108 human years.

Chief has lost about 150 pounds since the first of the year when he came down with acute arthritis, Haley reported. Since then he's also had three attacks of colic and went off his feed each time.

Foaled in 1932 near Scottsbluff, Neb., Chief arrived at Ft. Riley in 1941 and served in both the 10th and 9th Cavalry before he was retired 15 years ago.

The last of the many cavalry horses that saw service before mechanization, he will remain on the Army rolls until his death—eating, loafing and getting attention.

N. Y. Protest in Third Day

Students Try to Halt Columbia Classes

NEW YORK (AP) — Student demonstrators pushed their tumultuous protest at Columbia University into a third day today, demanding fellow students boycott classes and blocking some with human barricades at three buildings.

Tensions rose as opponents of the protest sought to attend classes and confronted demonstrators blocking entrances to the classroom buildings. But the rest of the campus remained relatively calm as morning classes began.

Cancels Classes

The university had canceled evening classes Wednesday and virtually sealed off its campus, despite the earlier release of the acting dean and two other administrators from a Hamilton Hall office where they had been held hostage for 24 hours.

Classes were resumed today but demonstrators blocking Hamilton Hall, the main classroom building, and the architecture and graduate classroom buildings effectively halted attendance at midmorning.

being blocked from classes, threatened to return later with reinforcements.

About 50 students remained overnight in the ransacked office of the university president, Dr. Grayson Kirk, in Low Memorial Library. Some 200 Negroes occupied Hamilton Hall and proclaimed it "Malcolm X University."

In a statement to newsmen, the university said "every effort has been made to avoid force."

Officials however took the precaution Wednesday of asking city police to enter Columbia's grounds for the first time in three years. The officers remained in a command office in the same building as Kirk's office.

A meeting between President Kirk and a delegation of Negroes from Hamilton Hall broke up at 4 a.m. with no apparent progress in resolving the dispute.

Elsewhere there were these developments.

—About 300 Negro students of Boston University ended a day-long sit-in behind chained doors when the university president promised to work for most of their demands including expanded Negro enrollment.

—Students at Trinity College in Hartford, Conn., ended a similar sit-in early Wednesday when the administration agreed to meet demands for increased scholarship aid to Negro students.

Plans for Gym

At issue in the Columbia protest—which involved only a few hundred of the 27,500 students enrolled—were the school's plans for a new gym in a nearby

Install New Guard Rails

$10,000 Project Covers 5 Areas In Waupaca County

WAUPACA — A $10,000 project of installing new steel beam guards at five highway locations in Waupaca County will start today and be completed in about three weeks.

The new installations, replacing the old type steel or wood guards, will be placed on U. S. 45 between New London and Clintonville, at the Embarrass and Wolf Rivers on State 156, and at the Little Wolf River on State 110 south of Marion.

The work will be performed by county crews under the direction of Fred Grunwald, county highway commissioner, with supervision by the district office of the State Division of Highways at Wisconsin Rapids.

Grunwald said that the guard rails will be installed with the latest safety specifications, which require the beam ends to be buried in the ground.

The highways will be open to traffic, but vehicles may be confined to one lane of travel in areas where men and equipment are working.

Despite Heavy Schedule

Busy Gov. Knowles Still Can Find Daily Reading Time

MADISON — Few men in Wisconsin manage such a busy schedule of daily activities as Gov. Warren P. Knowles. But the chief executive of Wisconsin, like other busy men, finds time for regular reading of books, numerous periodicals and newspapers.

There are books at the governor's bed-side table at the executive residence. His refurbished study in a remote corner of the governor's mansion is generously stocked with carefully chosen volumes reflecting his major interests. An inveterate traveller, the Wisconsin governor's attache case typically contains a book or periodical against the chance that there will be some spare moments in the fast pace of speeches and official ceremonies requiring the presence of the head of the state government.

Over a period of many years, he said in an interview here, he has had a compelling interest in history and biography.

Lincoln is Favorite

But he is also fond of periodical literature, and says that his taste in fiction runs the gamut from Anthony Adverse to Doctor Zhivago.

What has been his all-time favorite, among the books that he has read and enjoyed?

The reply was quick. "Carl Sandburg's Lincoln."

When the reporter called on the governor, he was engrossed in a new volume of short stories by Robert Traver, the celebrated Upper Michigan writer who, like the Wisconsin governor, practiced law for many years, and has become one of the most successful writers in the country as he has adapted his experiences in the law court to short stories and novels.

Knowles confided that he has been intrigued by the courses of instruction offered in recent years in fast reading — in the hope that he may be able to cover more periodical literature, the official reports that pile on his desk, in huge accumulations, his mail, the newspapers, and the best of the current literary production of the country.

But although he did not say it, his visitor left with the impression that he undoubtedly reads more rapidly than most.

National Library Week is being observed this week in the Fox Cities and throughout Wisconsin. In keeping with the observance, The Post-Crescent's Madison news bureau has prepared a special article dealing with the reading habits of Wisconsin's Gov. Warren Knowles.

His regular reading list includes five Wisconsin daily newspapers, including The Post-Crescent, two national newspapers, three news periodicals, as well as sports magazines on frequent occasions. Since boyhood, the governor has had an avid interest in competitive sports, outdoors recreation and conservation.

The governor's reading habits date from his boyhood in River Falls, where he was a regular patron of the public library and borrowed "everything from The Rover Boys to Horatio Alger, as well as science and more adult fiction."

One of the incidental rewards of being governor of a state is the volume of gift books that reach him, Knowles told his visitor when asked about his book-buying habits. "There are more books presented to me than I will ever have a chance to read while I hold this office. The latest book which I am enjoying is 'Famine 1967,'" he confided.

Who were the persons most influential in shaping his early reading habits and tastes, the governor was asked?

They were his teachers in grade school, junior high school and high school, he said, as he single out his favorite high school English teacher, Miss Lois Byrd, who called his name on the roll more than 40 years ago, in the Pierce County seat of River Falls in the far northwestern section of the state.

Banks Establish Own Rules For Certificates of Deposit

Consultant in Money Management
Dear Miss Feeley:

I recently had the misfortune to lose a Certificate of Deposit obtained from a savings bank. I reported the loss to the bank, and received what seems to me confusing information:

1. The certificate is not negotiable.
2. A bond double the amount of the certificate is required in order to get my money (Certificate is now due).
3. A bond is required to protect the bank because I might sell the certificate to a third party.

Now, here are my questions:

Assuming that I were dishonest, would it really be possible for me to sell a non-negotiable Certificate of Deposit, you must go along with that institution's rulings.

Why should the bond be double the amount?

Under what circumstances could the bonding company collect the full amount of the bond from me?

E. S., East Coast

Dear E. S.: Banks and savings and loan associations handle Certificates of Deposit in different ways. Some are negotiable, some like yours, non-negotiable require only that an affidavit be prepared and sworn to by the customer. The bank's discretion determines whether an indemnity bond is also required. If the customer is well-known to the bank, the bond may be skipped entirely.

The point is, what's "fair" is a matter the individual institution decides when it sets up its operations. So when you buy a Certificate of Deposit, you must go along with that institution's rulings.

In some cases non-negotiable

certificates are transferable, and there have been cases where this has happened. One instance a banker cited concerned a $10,000 "non-negotiable" certificate which was "lost" in a Midwestern state — and showed up 10 years later in somebody else's estate in another part of the country. Under such circumstances, the bonding company might find itself liable for loss that also included accrued interest — or be involved in legal proceedings. That's why a bond equal to double the amount of the CD is often required.

To answer your last question: it would be necessary for your bank to prove they had incurred a loss in the transaction before you would be required to pay the full amount of the bond.
